Village board approves 'adult uses' ordinance

BY JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

> The board of directors of the totally prevent this type of business. Village of Antioch approved an ordinance that will restrict businesses referred to as "adult uses."

With this ordinance on the books, the village can regulate businesses such as adult bookstores, adult entertainment cabarets (strip clubs), adult motion picture theaters and adult novelty stores.

Over the past several meetings, board members have discussed what measures should be taken to provide the most protection for the community from these types of businesses without leaving the village vulnerable to a lawsuit for putting unreasonable barriers in the ordinance.

Village attorney Ken Clark made sure it was clear that Antioch has to allow for adult uses within the village. Because freedom of expression is protected under the First Amendment of the Constitution, the village cannot make the restrictions so strong that they would in essence

The language of the ordinance limits adult uses to property zoned M-1 (manufacturing district) as of January 2000. Additionally, the businesses will not be allowed any closer than 600 feet to the property lines of residences, schools, parks, churches and other businesses that sell liquor, as well as maintaining a 600-foot distance from marked state highways and the downtown overlay district.

This leaves 67.7 acres of land within the village that could be occupied by these businesses, about 1.5 percent of the total area of the Clark clarified that once an adult use business has already been established, people cannot come in and build houses as an excuse to shut the business down.

Antioch announces holiday lights contest

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

It's not too late to sign up for the Holiday Lights of Antioch contest. Residents are encouraged to decorate the outside of their homes with lights and participate in this contest sponsored by the Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry and CAN.

Kolle said, "There was a lot of participation last year, and we'd like to have another year like it. It looks so pretty when the whole town is lit up."

Signage will be distributed to homes participating in the contest. According to the Chamber's office administrator Susie Kolle, participants will be eligible to win $1,000 in Chamber gift certificates.

The Chamber gift certificates can be used at 300 businesses throughout the Chamber membership in Antioch for anything from groceries, antiques, cigars, hardware, bikes, jewelry and just about anything else found in local shops.

Registration can be done over the phone by calling the Chamber at 395-2233, or in person at 882 Main St. in Antioch.

Dist. 33 to hold tax levy hearing

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

A public hearing is being held to approve a proposed property tax levy increase of Emmons Grade School Dist. 33 on Dec. 19 at 7 p.m. at Emmons Grade School located on Beach Grove Rd. in Antioch.

Supt. Matt Tabar said, "We're not seeking anything unusual this year. The amount is under 15 percent."

Tabar indicated that the tax cap limits the district, making it necessary to ask for more than what is actually needed.

"Eighty-five percent of our total operational funds come from property taxes," said Tabar. "Only 10-15 percent come from state and federal funding." Property taxes levied will be used for all of the funds used to operate the school including the educational fund, building fund, transportation fund and special education fund.

The corporate and special purpose property taxes abated for 1999 were $1.38 million, and the proposed tax levy increase is for $1.59 million or a 14.8 percent increase over the previous year.

"Last year the growth rate was smaller than in past years," said

Annual family Christmas concert planned for Dec. 10

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

The Lakes Area Community Band, sponsored by Festival Arts of Antioch, will be performing its annual family Christmas concert on Dec. 10 at 3 p.m. in the Antioch Community High School (ACHS) auditorium.

"This is a great event for the whole family," said band director Steve Porch. "We've planned for there to be a lot of variety in this concert, and we'll get the whole auditorium involved with sing-along caroling at the end of the performance."

According to Porch, along with traditional band favorites like "Sleigh Ride" and "Valse de Fleurs," the Antioch High School Choir will augment the band with singing.

"It's really great that Keith Cox (choir director at ACHS) was able to pull together about 20 students for us," said Porch. "Many of the choir members are performing at the Messiah which takes place on the same day."

Vocalist Jennifer Beil-Franco will hare her talents both as a soloist and joining in with the band and the choir.

As an added bonus, the Trinity International University Handbell Choir, directed by Antioch's own Debbie Gillette, will be performing. "This choir uses different-sized bells to give it a full range of voices," said Porch. "The result is an incredibly warm, beautiful sound."

This group will both play some songs by themselves and will join in the grand finale, "A Christmas Festival" by Leroy Anderson.

Song sheets will be provided for the audience to make joining in with favorite Christmas carols, such as "Silent Night," easier and more enjoyable.

The raffle drawing for the band's fund-raiser will be the icing on this musical cake. The winner will receive a one-week Caribbean cruise, complete with airfare and $250 toward port charges. Only 300 tickets are being sold at $25, and some tickets are still available. Call 395-6729 for more information about the raffle.

Concerts performed by the Lakes Area Community band are always free. Parking for the easiest access is in the south parking lot of the high school. Come early for the best seating.

The band gives special thanks to principal Jim Love, and high school band director John Olisar for all of the support that is offered throughout the year.

LECC students to make care baskets

The Lindenhurst Early Childhood Center is sponsoring the ninth annual Gift of Giving

The center plans on delivering 30 van loads of clothing and toys to Allendale, Safe Place, Winchester House, PADS, The Haven Shelter and the Pacific Gardens, as well as over 300 care baskets (made by the children) to The Lake County Housing Authority, The Lake Villa Township, The PADS, The Good News Soup Kitchen and Allendale.

Additionally the group plans to hand deliver over 350 new toys to the Rush St. Lukes Hospital and The Cook County Hospital on Christmas eve.

By involving the children in this event, the center brings together all of its programs to achieve something special for the children.

They will be making the care baskets on Dec. 12-13.

Community joins together to help CBCH

The support from the community to participate in Central Baptist Children's Home Christmas Giving is always good, but this year it has been unusually generous. During this holiday season, Central Baptist will distribute gifts to 4,400 children and 40 families. Civic groups, corporations, local businesses, churches, and individuals from the area have offered to sponsor the children and families by providing gifts or food baskets.

No group better represents this giving than Prince of Peace Catholic Church. This year they took a record number of names totaling 500 children. The children are in our foster car program or one of our other services in Lake, Cook, McHenry or DuPage County. The spirit of giving is alive in our community.

Any questions, call Joyce Heneberry at 356-2391 or Anna Macanawicz, coordinator at Prince of Peace at 265-0393.

Katie's Country Cottage expands, adds variety of merchandise

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

Katie's Country Cottage has expanded from the 1,150 square feet of its old location to about 3,600 square feet at its new location, best known as the former Reeves Drug Store.

Owner Kathy Martin, who said she now gets called "Katie Kathy," said; "It's three times more fun than our first location. People can browse half the store, and then sit on our couches a little while before shopping the other half."

Martin kept the previous store location open while she renovated the current one. "On Aug. 1, I started renovating this shop. The other store closed on Sept. 23, and the doors opened here on Oct. 7— for the front half of the shop. It took another three weeks to finish the back half where our couches and extra furniture are,' said Martin.

Of the couches, Martin added, "I always wanted benches out front for the men, but now I have the couches and don't need the benches. Plus,-I've been told by many men that they like my store too."

The shop is filled top to bottom and front to back with country gifts, collectibles and furniture. "I always wanted an old house and converted barn for my shop," said Martin. "I couldn't find that situation, so here I am. I have the biggest store on Main St., and I could still use more room."

Martin said she wants people to enjoy her store and has chosen her merchandise and displays to that "I don't want everyone in the area to have the same things, so I change what I keep in the store pretty often. I can order something for someone, but often people say they'll just wait and see what new things I have coming in," she said.

Since the new store has opened, Martin has added upholstered couches and chairs, more wooden furniture, and upper end dishes and dinnerware. She stocks candles from five different candle companies. She plans to attend trade shows in January to look for other new vendors.

Other specialty items include handmade samplers created by three different women around the country, as well as flower and herb displays made out of the old windows out of the Ft. McCoy Army barracks in Wisconsin.

One of the most enjoyable things for Martin about her new location is hearing the stories and history of the old Reeves Drug Store as people come into see her new shop. "I love to hear the old stories about when this was a drug store," said Martin. "You can see people reliving their childhoods when they come in here, and their eyes sparkle."

In the course of remodeling, Martin unearthed some treasures from the drug store's heyday that she has donated to the Lakes Region Historical Society. "When we were renovating we found rolls of undeveloped film from the old Brownie cameras, old lipstick containers-both pre-war plastic ones and metal bullet-type cases, and some letters that had never been delivered."

Martin added, "I have kept some of the fixtures to have some of the things from the old drug store around. I like it.'

With a bigger store come more employees to service the customers. "All the people who work for me are friends, or I've met through friends," said Martin.

Antioch Mayor Marilyn Shineflug has announced her intentions to run for re-election as part of the Antioch First party in the April 3, 2001 election. Though she had planned to present the platform of the Antioch First party after the holidays, Shineflug came forward with her news in response to businessman Taso Maravela's entry as an independent candidate against her.

In addition to Shineflug, the Antioch First party is made up of Dorothy Larson, who is seeking reelection as a village trustee; Tom Baba, who is currently a member of the combined planning and zoning board, a position he would leave to fulfill duties as a trustee; and Ken Karasek, who has never before served the village in an official capacity.

"I am very pleased to announce the formation of the Antioch First party," said Shineflug. "Each of our candidates has demonstrated an outstanding record of positive involvement in our community."

for his efforts providing food for Meals-On-Wheels through

Catholic Charities, said he is a serious candidate for served as a trustee on the village board from 1995-1999, and said, "Since I have been out of the office, people have expressed a lot of dissatisfaction to me (about the incumbent mayor and current board), and don't think this administration should run unopposed."

Issues important to the Antioch First party are creating a healthy, balanced tax base that includes an appropriate mix of residential, commercial, light industrial and conservation/open space areas in order to provide tax relief and improve job opportunities for residents; and to shape the growth that is coming to Antioch while preserving Antioch's identity, historical heritage and community pride.

Mar avela said four "issues are key to his campaign: development, flooding, streets and traffic. He said a village is just like previously written report had misunderstood his comments and that he is not pro-growth. "We don't need another K-Mart or Sam's (Club)," said Maravela.

In terms of residential growth he said, "It's too overcrowded as it is. There are over 10 subdivisions that have not been completed. We need strict control of growth for both planning and zoning."

Maravela isn't alone in his belief that growth should be regulated. "Members of the Antioch First party share a strong desire to be responsive to residents' concerns," emphasized Shineflug. "One frequently heard concern relates to the amount of residential growth being experienced in our area."

Shineflug indicated that, in coming weeks, her party would share more specific information about what the village has done, and plans to do, with regard to streets, sewer systems, sidewalks, parks, police and fire services.

Maravela feels he would make a good mayor because he is a good businessman who has been successful for 43 years. "Running the village is just like running any other business," he said. "My office door is always open now, and it will always be open to anyone in the village if I am elected."

Shineflug served as a trustee on the village board from 1989-1993, and has served as mayor of the village since 1993. She has been Antioch's representative to the Lake County Solid Waste Agency since 1983 and is now chairman of the executive committee. She has been on the board of the Lake County Municipal League since 1995 and now serves the league as president.

Maravela has criticized efforts to privatize work that had been previously handled by the public works department. He said, "I would like to bring the village back to what it was like in the '70s, with more village employees and fewer outside contractors." He feels it is more expensive for the village to use outsiders than to use people intimately acquainted with the physical structures of the tion can benefit the taxpayers because certain services, such as snowplowing, can be provided on an asneeded basis. Without privatization, the village must cover employee expenses, including salaries and benefits, as well as equipment expenses including purchase and maintenance, on a full-time basis.'

She added, "Members of the village board, including Mr. Maravela, studied the issue for many months before voting in 1997 to support the partial privatization of three programs with contracts for the operation of the sewage treatment plant as well as the provision of related laboratory services, contracts of supplemental snow removal and contracts for limited janitorial services. His voting record shows he supported, on numerous occasions, all of these initiatives."

The positions of trustee currently held by Marvin Oldenburger and Ron Cunningham will be filled in addition to Larson's in the spring election. Neither Oldenburger nor Cunningham has picked up petitions to place them on the ballot from the village clerk at this time.

Petitions can be picked up at the Village Hall by anyone interested in filling one of these open positions. Petitions must be signed by a minimum of 62 registered voters in Antioch and be filed with the village clerk between Jan. 15-23.

Chamber nominations finalized, election results set for Dec. 13

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

The Antioch Chamber of Commerce and Industry has finalized the list of nominees for the ballot for 2001 board of directors, and election results will be announced Dec. 13.

Chamber members recommended individuals for nomination who then had to agree to serve on the board of directors if elected. Nominees include Bill Ahlers, business manager of Antioch Community High School; Kevin Crowe, Neumann Homes; Mike Culat, ReMax Advantage; Karen Dunham, First National Bank-Employee Owned; Tom Englehart, Awards by Kaydan; Gordy Kiesgen, American Family Insurance; and John Ruffin, Great Northern Bank.

Three of the seven nominees will be chosen to fill opening on the board. The installation dinner will be held on Jan. 19 at the Twin Oaks Country Inn in Wilmot, Wis.

Director of the Chamber Barbara Porch said, "We will have entertainment at the dinner, and we will also be giving out member recognition awards."

seven and 14 shades. And unlike other teeth whitening procedures which require a mouth-piece to be worn for a long period of time, this procedure usually includes only three 20 minute treatments in one visit.

"The big advantage is it's done in one hour instead of 14-30 days," said Cohen. "It will not change the color of crowns or fillings."

Brite Smile is basically a three-step procedure. First, all of the gum tissue is isolated by a liquid material that hardens to protect the gums, because they can be sensitive. Then, a gel is put on the patient's teeth which consists of a 15 percent hydrogen peroxide solution and an agent that is activated by a gas plasma light also known as a blue light. This bleaches the teeth. Once this is completed, the excess gel is removed from the patients teeth, and the procedure is repeated, usually twice.

"It's not heat that's causing the gel to oxygenate the teeth structure, it's photo-reactivity," commented Cohen.

Libertyville resident Melissa Knuth had the procedure performed, and prior to going to Cohen's office said she didn't know what to expect. Afterwards, she explained what the procedure was like.

"They are a lot brighter that they were before," Knuth said about her teeth. "I think that the amount of time it took to have things done as well as they were— I was very impressed."

She was shown a before and after picture of her teeth following the procedure, and Cohen said that her teeth were whitened by about nine shades. Since she works two jobs, she explained that to a lot of people like herself who are very busy, time is an important factor.

"It takes maybe a two hour chunk of a day, but then you don't have to worry about it (wearing a mouth guard with whitening gel from two weeks to a month," said Knuth. But did she feel any discomfort? Only once, but she said it was because her mouth became a little dry at the end of the treatment.

"That wasn't too bad, all things considered," she said. According to Cohen, this was normal, because the teeth have to re-hydrate from the bleaching process. However, he noted that this is not painful.

The Brite Smile procedure has been approved by the American Dental Assn., and independent safety studies conducted by researchers at the University of Medicine and Dentistry in New Jersey, and New York University, confirmed that the procedure causes no structural change in a person's teeth. They also found that it does not soften tooth enamel and is not harmful to gum tissue.

The procedure typically costs $500, compared to $350-$600 for tray bleaching, making the cost comparable. Cohen noted that the results generally last three years or more with good dental hygiene, and often considerably longer for patients who refrain from using tobacco products, coffee, tea or dark soft drinks.

To learn more about the Brite Smile procedure, call Dr. Cohen at 918-1900, call 1-800-BRITESMILE, or log onto the Internet at www.britesmile.com. His office is located at 10 Phillip Rd., suite 117, Vernon Hills.

Suspended driver's license

Albert A. Pedersen, 39, of 3414 Mary Ave. in Park City, was arrested on Dec. 3 at 6:37 p.m. for driving with a suspended driver's license on Main St. north of Orchard.

Police stopped the vehicle for having only one headlight. Pedersen told the officer he had a suspended driver's license for having too many speeding tickets. This information was confirmed through LEADS.

Pedersen was transported to the Antioch Police Dept. where he was put through booking procedures and issued citations for improper lighting (one headlamp) and for driving on a suspended license.

He was released on signature bond pending his Jan. 24 court date.

Charles G. Allen, 30, of 289 Joanna in Antioch, was arrested for driving with a suspended driver's license on Nov. 28 at 9:38 a.m. on Rte. 173 at Grimm Rd.

Police saw a vehicle stopped at the intersection of Rte. 83 and Rte. 173 with no visible registration, and with a cracked front windshield.

Allen exited the vehicle when stopped and police recognized him, and knew him to have a suspended driver's license. He had temporary registration that was obstructed by a motorcycle in the bed of the truck.

He was arrested and transported to the Antioch Police Dept, where he was put through booking procedures and issued citations for having an obstructed front windshield, and driving with a suspended driver's license.

Allen was released on bond pending his
Jan. 10 court date.

DUI

Joseph B. Hertel, 28, of 20756 W. Rte. 176 in Mundelein, was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol on Dec. 3 at 2:56 a.m. at the intersection of Lake St. and Rte. 83.

His vehicle was stopped by police for failing to signal his turn southbound onto Rte. 83 from Lake St. Hertel gave police his Illinois driver's license and an expired insurance card. While speaking with Hertel, the officer detected the strong smell of alcoholic beverage on his breath.

Hertel failed to successfully complete the field sobriety tests and was placed under arrest for driving under the influence of alcohol. He was transported to the Antioch Police Dept. where he was put through booking procedures and issued citations for failure to signal when required, DUI and operating an uninsured vehicle.

Hertel refused chemical testing. He was released on proper bond.

William J. Finck, 31, of 267 Hazelwood in Antioch, was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol on Dec. 2 at 1:28 a.m. at 760 Main St.

An officer was dispatched to investigate a suspicious vehicle, and saw the vehicle with its motor running on the south side of the Police saw a male, later identified as Finck, sleeping in the driver's seat. Finck was asked and unable to perform field sobriety tests. He was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol and transported to the Antioch Police Dept. There he was put through booking procedures and issued citations for driving under the influence of alcohol, and for operating an uninsured vehicle. He refused all chemical tests.

Finck was unable to post bond. He was released at 8 a.m. on personal recognizance, pending his Jan. 2 court date.

Cheryl D. Bobb, 30, of 570 Drom Ct. in Antioch, was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol on Nov. 30 at 12:54 a.m. at Main St. and Poplar.

Police clocked her vehicle traveling 43 mph in a 30-mph zone. The officer followed her vehicle and saw it severely weaving within its lane, and then crossed over the centerline.

Bobb was unable to successfully complete field sobriety testing when asked, and was arrested for driving under the influence

Antioch's Howard honored

Named nutrition site coordinator of year

By JULIE MURPHY Staff Reporter

Antioch Senior Center coordinator Paul Howard has been named nutrition site manager of the year. Illinois Dept. on Aging director Margo Schreiber announced that Howard, and other individuals and groups throughout the state, will be honored during an awards presentation to be held at the Governor's Conference on Aging and Human Services at noon on Dec. 8 at the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Chica-

Howard was nominated and subsequently named for the award by the Illinois Association of Nutrition Project Directors. He is actively involved with congregate and home-delivered meal programs, and often visits homebound clients in order to monitor their wellbeing as part of his duties at the Senior Center.

Joanne Adams, Howard's wife, said, "Paul" goes way above and beyond the actual job description. He'll teach a woman to drive if her husband has died, and she needs to learn."

Howard has worked for Catholic Charities at the Antioch Senior Center for 16 years and has a master's degree in social work. "He loves the home delivered meals program, and he loves the diversity of the job," Adams added.

Adams said, "Antioch is our chosen community, and Paul's a community person. In addition to the things he does at the Senior Center, he's a referee for basketball, an umpire for. baseball, and he coaches both soccer and iceless hockey."

According to Howard's wife, the feelings. between Howard and the people he works with are mutual. "The people (at the Senior Center) do love him," said Adams. "They are an extension of our family."

Mercury collection sites in Lake County, Chicagoland area

For the next month, residents across Chicagoland who are concerned about the health risks posed by mercury will have access to a quick, safe disposal option. From Nov. 14-Dec. 17, only, a variety of fire stations in Cook, Lake, DuPage, Kane and Will Counties will take citizen drop-offs of elemental mercury and mercury containing products for proper disposal.

The Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (IEPA), in conjunction with Suburban Fire Chiefs; the City of Chicago Department of Environment, and with the support of local solid waste management agencies, including the Solid Waste Agency of Lake County (SWAL-CO) in Lake County, has developed a network of mercury drop-off sites at fire stations around the region. Interested citizens in Lake County can go to the following area collection sites on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9 a.m.-5 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m.-noon.

•Lake Forest Fire Department, 225 W. Deerpath/Lake Forest

 Mundelein Fire Department, Station 1, 1000 N. Midlothian Rd./Mundelein

•Wauconda Fire Department, Station 1, 109 W. Liberty/Wauconda

For further information or the address, collection days and times of other Chicago and suburban locations participating in this program, contact IEPA at (800) 635-2380.

The dangers posed by mercury have been on the front burner in the Chicagoland area due to several spills and problems encountered with utility equipment removal in thousand of homes. It is not uncommon for products containing liquid mercury to be in a typical home. Elemental mercury, a liquid silvery metal, is used in a variety of household products. Thermometers, both air temperature and medical types contain mercury, as do gauges such as barometers, manometers and vacuum gauges, and many older thermostats. Likewise, the switches in light up children's sneakers contain mercury, and many hobbyists may collect elemental mercury. If any of these apply to products that you may own, please replace them with safer alternatives, such as electronic and digital versions.

However, remember that mercury-containing devices should never be thrown away in the trash. To minimize potential hazards, keep all mercury-containing products in an airtight, leak-proof container and mark on the outside of the container in permanent ink that contents contain mercury. Bring this to one of the participating fire stations located in your area before Dec. 17, on the days and times noted, or keep the container stored out of reach of children and away from any potential breakage until it can be disposed of properly at a Household Chemical Waste Drop-Off Day. For location and dates of SWALCO-sponsored drop-off events to be offered in 2001, check the SWALCO website at www.swalco.org, your local newspaper, municipal newsletter; the local cable access channel or call 336-9340. For information on IEPA sponsored household hazardous waste collections, visit the Illinois EPA web site at www.epa.state.il.us or call (217) 785-8604.

'O Christmas tree, O Christmas tree'

nce again it is that time of year to decide whether or not to don the living room with a real Christmas tree or one of those artificial ones shimmering all pretty and bright. It's hard not to get all caught up in the spirit of the season at the Christmas Tree Store, with the carols tinkling in the background, the trees standing majestically on fake snow with sparkling tinsel, evenly spaced twinkling lights, neatly hung ornaments and the oh-so-perfect angel on the top keeping watch, waiting for the right customer to be taken in by all its ambiance. We rush to pay for our purchase and run home to create the same festive feeling that we experienced in the store—but somewhere between the showroom floor and the living room, the tree looses its pizzazz.

Even though you purchased the exact same ensemble that adorned the store sample, you still are unable to create the masterpiece that sold you on the fake fir in the first place. After hours of stringing lights, draping garland, hanging ornaments and individual strains of tinsel, you step back to admire your creation and are confronted with a fake green tree which seems to have been caught in the direct line of a party popper explosion.

Exhausted and spent, you use an old bedspread as a makeshift tree skirt, take two aspirin, and decide to deal with it at a more convenient time—like the day after Christmas when you can take the darn thing down. Real trees aren't much better. If you buy one that is already cut, you don't really get to see it because it's all wrapped in netting-some of those trees are bound so tight the first hint of . any release causes a force strong enough to take down the front wall of your house.

For those who feel the urge to cut down their own tree, just remember-they never look as big out in the field as they really are. You get home only to realize you are stuck with a 14 by 14 foot tree in a 10 by 10 foot room, not to mention bottom branches that reach from your living room all the way to the next door neighbor's master bathroom. Families have actually cut off all the back branches of their newly chopped down tree so they could stand it flush against the wall and still be able to eat in their kitchen. But once the tree is physically standing erect in your living room, you are obligated to decorate it.

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Mom or dad strings the lights, and then the kids take over from there. Children are not permitted within earshot during the light stringing process as the language emitting from the living room is usually very graphic. Hour after hour is spent lovingly wrapping each branch with twinkling lights, only to have the last of 600 strands blink brightly for about 20 seconds, and then half the tree goes dark. You say a few choice words and then begin to replace each bulb, one at a time, until the culprit is found, which usually takes the better part of your life.

You eventually give up and hope nobody notices that the entire left side of the tree is void of lights. It just seems like way too much energy to expend on something that in just a few days is going to end up either at the curb, or back in the box. We should forget the whole tree thing and just have Santa put the presents on the coffee table in the living room. Life would be much more simple and our vacuum cleaner wouldn't be jammed with pine needles until July,

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle."

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

Where's the line?

s a pattern developing here? Do local high school coaches cross the line when it comes to making cuts on the team? Many would say yes. Many would take it with a grain of salt and move on. Well, there is one local program that has been very successful, especially in recent years.

It's not to say either party, the cut player or the coach, is to blame. But both sides need to understand the big picture.

To my understanding, as long as you go out and give it your best shot, if a coach doesn't like what he's seeing, it's his loss! Right? You might not be good enough for the team but as long as you know deep down inside you competed with the opposition and gave it your all, that's what matters. Correct me if I'm

Introducing the combatants. In this corner, you have the well-established and successful basketball program with a coach who pushes and strives to get the most of his play-

And trust me-I've done my research. After talking with these players, who shall remain anonymous for now-they can't envision playing for any other coach. The reason-they're coach is getting the most out of them and they fully understand this.

While the common goal of the program is geared towards having fun, the competitive nature involved in high school sports present-day is at an all-time high. The program wants to represent the school well and prove they can hang with the best. Furthermore, a conference title is usually another common goal. If you don't attain that goal, others are set, realizing limitations, of course.

Some might view a coach yelling and screaming at players during the course of a practice or a game malicious at first. But upon further review, there is justified reason they do so. They know you are capable of so much more and think you are not fully applying yourself. But you have to ask yourself this. Would you rather be pushed into doing your best or would you perhaps like to play for a coach and team that has fun, yes, but while learning, the coach (and yourself) aren't putting forth the effort they know they can.

Mixed into the equation is the fact that losing happens to be a part of the game and a part of life. You win some and you lose some.

The underlying dilemma, however, is this: Where do you draw the line when you have a successful program and a player has tried to fit in and did so his first three years after working his way up the ranks? Then, all of a sudden, you're cut from the team because building for the future is the primary objective. Furthermore, the cut player (and there were five, I'm told) are dubbed as a 'disease' to the team's growth. Many would say that is in poor taste.

I myself liked to be pushed. But the issue and while I'm venting is how it is communicated when you are not one of the select few that makes the cut.

Perhaps being called a 'disease' to the team was a stretch. But that's life. Nonsense like this seems commonplace in today's competitive world.

Thus, the moral of this story is simple. Words can and do hurt, especially when it deals with telling a player that you're all of a sudden not a part of the mix. If that's what the coach said, conveying to the player that you did they did not make the team should be communicated perhaps a little differently. Only suggestion I have is to use this adversity towards construction, not destruction. How they do that is up to them.

Wasn't Michael Jordan cut from his high school basketball team? Think about it!

Warren Township High School (O'Plaine campus) will be holding tryouts for the Warren Jr. Blue Devils seventh and eighth-grade boys basketball teams.

The tryout dates are slated for Dec. 10 from 1-3 p.m. in the field house, at which time the first cut will be made. Then, on Dec. 17 from 1-3:30 p.m. in the gymnasium, teams will be finalized. The Jr. Blue Devils is a boys traveling basketball program dedicated to providing highly competitive play and learning for the sixth, seventh and eighth-grades.

John Phelps can be reached at (847) 223-8161, ext. 132; fax (847) 223-8810; or e-mail at edit@lnd.com.

It's all in the attitude for Lady Sequoits basketball

SPORTS

ACHS rolls, honors Carlberg

By JOHN PHELPS Sports Editor

December 8, 2000

Doug Carlberg must have been watching. The Antioch High School faithful honored the long-time booster and Sequoit supporter prior to the Dec. 2 girl's varsity basketball game with visiting Lake Forest.

Carlberg, a carpenter by trade, passed away suddenly two years ago.

"He was a great friend to the students and community and we're very thankful for this dedication," said wife Barb, who was accompanied by daughter Amy, son Eric, grandparents June and Roy, and Doug's brother Steve in accepting a basketball signed by the current varsity girls team. In addition, the flag at the north end of the gym was dedicated in Doug's memory.

Meanwhile, the momentum and energy transcended to the court as the Lady Sequoits proceeded to pound lumps on the visiting Scouts to the tune of a 59-38 decision.

And junior forward Erica Brown felt it-the intensity for all four quarters, that is.

"We were disappointed after losing a 1point game to Grant earlier in the week," said Brown, a three-year varsity starter who poured in a game-high 16 points. "We tend to buckle when we get a lead but today, we just stayed real positive and didn't let this one get away from us. Coach Zeman has been real positive with us. He also encourages us and let's us know where we can improve."

Brown, along with senior forward/center Shelley Wolfgram, wreaked havoc in the middle. Wolfgram tallied 13 points as Antioch, which improved to 2-5 overall, 1-0 in the NSC Lake, scored at will from inside the paint.

And when the post game wasn't clicking, Bethany Shore (11 points), Amy Mueller (8 points) and Justine Sinkus (5 points) were able and willing to can shots from the perimeter.

"We seized the lead and maintained it," said first-year Head Coach Don Zeman. "We never let them (Lake Forest) sniff the lead. Our theme before the game today was wake-up and be smart. And it showed. I'm very proud of the girls."

The Sequoits jumped all over the Scouts right from the get-go, going up 12-4 early and 16-11 after the first frame. Brown scored 10 and Wolfgram added four to lead the way.

Lake Forest (4-2, 0-1) could get no closer than six in the second half as the Sequoits upped the advantage to 10 with the biggest margin being the final score.

"We won this one for Doug," added Brown, who grew up with the Carlberg's.

And Athletic Director Steve Schoenfelder wasn't short on praise for Carlberg as well.

"He was always there to offer his assistance and help out any way he could," said Athletic Director Steve Schoenfelder. "He very instrumental in building the scoring tower at Polley Field. He was just a great friend and supporter of the high school."

And Doug would be very proud of the Lady Sequoits on this afternoon.

Sequoits boys hoops intensity level so close, yet so far

By JOHN PHELPS Sports Editor

Senior forward Ari Brown thought it was in. So did the Antioch faithful.

But Brown's half-court heave narrowly bounced off the backboard and rim as time expired and Lake Forest had escaped away with a 48-46 victory in Antioch.

"I thought it was going," said Brown shortly afterwards. "But I think we proved to ourselves that we are capable of playing with anybody."

Except for one thing-the Sequoits have to do it for a full 32 minutes, especially against the good teams they have forthcoming on their schedule, namely NSC cross-over foe Grant at home Dec. 9 at 7:30 p.m., followed by an away date with Stevenson Dec. 15, again at 7:30 p.m.

"We couldn't sit down because the energy was flowing," said Ryan Moxley.

And the junior forward has a point-keeping the intensity level high throughout. It was definitely evident in the second-half as the host Sequoits erased a 16-point halftime deficit, including a lead Lake Forest upped to 20 on two occasions in the second quarter.

The furious comeback began with Eric White's lay-up with 2:36 left in the third, cutting the lead down to 41-24. From there, the Sequoits put on an 18-0 outburst, culminating with an Eric Langner lay-up with 5:19 remaining in regulation to bring the hosts to within one at 41-40.

Langner, a senior forward, scored six of his eight points during the run.

The defense also turned it up a notch during the spree as the Sequoits converted six steals into 10 points.

"It was definitely a helter-skelter game for us," said Head Coach Jeff Dresser: "At the beginning, we were draggin' and just didn't come out ready to play. Of course we were disappointed we lost but in the same token, we executed our press and got good ball movement in the second half."

White shared game-high honors with Michael Liddy and Tommy Smith of Lake Forest. All three poured in 16 points.

The Sequoits got some nice support, especially in the paint. Along with Brown and Langner, Josh Bonner took some nice backdoor feeds to also finish with eight points.

"We've been trying to get the ball inside more and in the second-half, we were pretty successful," added Dresser.

Langner's lay-in with 2:53 left tied the game at 46-all. Then Lake Forest held on for a last shot and Smith converted from under the Antioch's inbound pass was then stolen but Lake Forest couldn't convert just before Brown's near-heroics.

"We had a lot of teamwork in the second 😅 half," said Dresser. "But the first half seemed like a lot of individual stuff. Bottom line is we need to win these close games."

Something to think about.

Sequoit grapplers quiet but dangerous

By JOHN PHELPS Sports Editor

They may not have one clear-cut standout wrestler, but that's okay with Head Coach Ted Sieckowski.

'We won't have a lot of top seeds at tournaments and invitationals but that makes us dangerous," said the coach. "But we are an above-average team with a lot of guys who are capable of competing with anyone on any giv-

Dangerous is pretty accurate, seeing that the Sequoits placed fifth with 115 points in the prestigious 15-team Stagg Invitational Dec. 2.

"We had a chance to finish second but lost an overtime match," reflected Sieckowski. "But I'm really pleased with how we competed. Some of the final scores you see in our matches aren't indicative of the effort.

tiveness these kids demonstrate."

At 189 pounds, junior Steve Oliver was the only champion on the afternoon.

"He's really come on and stepped up for us," noted Sieckowski.

Other top place-winners included sophomore Ryan Schuster second at 103 and Bob Grasser, also second at 130.

"If we have any big guns, those two are right up there," said Sieckowski. "But again, they along with everyone else is working hard and improving with every match."

One of the top seniors returning is 135pounder Thor Swanson, who took fifth at Stagg, Right behind in seventh included the likes of 125-pounder, junior James Keating, a transfer from Texas, and 275-pounder, senior Dave Vanderkooy.

Eighth-place efforts were turned in by juom Cichon (135) and Tom Chilcote (171).

So far this season, Grasser sports a 9-4 record while Keating, Swanson and Oliver currently stand at 8-4. Schuster is off to a great start at 4-1, while Cichon and Vanderkooy look to improve on their 4-5 and 5-5 marks, respectively.

On the strength of technical falls by Swanson and Ryan Smart (160 pounds) and pins by Oliver and Joe Perzigian (140), the Sequoits cruised past Lake Forest in duel meet action, 41-30. And speaking of duel meet action, the 1-3 Sequoits take to the mats at Libertyville at 6 p.m. on Dec. 9. And guess who won the Stagg Invitational! Libertyville.

"They are very strong but I think we match up well with them," said Sieckowski. "I know we will compete honorably."

New leadership won't change agenda for County Board

CLASSIFIED

By CAREL SCHMIDLKOFER Staff Reporter

There is a new atmosphere at the Lake County Board with the unanimous election of Suzie Schmidt (R-Lake Villa) to the position of Chair and Al Westerman (R-Waukegan) as new Forest Preserve Board president.

Schmidt, a 12-year veteran of the elected body, said she wants to direct her energy full-time toward county government and to continue in the same direction as the previous administration. This includes continuing to work for open space within the

Her goals include involving municipal leadership in county government, especially planning and zoning. "We're all in this for the same reason, the good of Lake County," said the new chairwoman.

Other endeavors include working with legislators for school funding. School superintendents have shown an interest in working with the board, said Schmidt. "I am pleased superintendents are willing to bring issues to the board. We want to work with them," said Schmidt.

County Board Rep. Judy Martini (R-Antioch), won the Vice Chair position in a vote of 14 - 9 over County Board Rep. Pam Newton (R-Veron Hills) at a reorganization meeting Monday morning. "It is an honor and a dream come true for me to become vice chairwoman," said Martini.

Westerman became Forest Preserve president in a vote of 14 - 9 over commissioner Robert Buhai (D-Highland Park).

"There has been a lot of hard work and effort to get to this point," said Westerman, commenting on his rise throughout the ranks.

The new president will concentrate on completing the Millennium and Des Plaines trail acquisitions.

"There is so much development pressure that the suburbs really need to get this done," said Westerman.

Funding for the district's projects are a concern of Westerman's, who said obtaining funding "will be a real challenge in the next few years."

Westerman will strive for land acquisitions before land becomes unattainable. "I don't want to get into the same bind that DuPage County is in," the president said.

Westerman, a four-year Forest Preserve District commissioner, has an extensive background in forestry, which began with training in geology, geography, and forestry at Illinois State University, where he graduated mid- term. Later he obtained his master's in forestry.

When a position for the district's first naturalist was created in 1971, Westerman jumped at the opportu-

"It was right in my back yard," said Westerman, who grew up in the Zion area.

Westerman commended the efforts of County Board Rep. Carol Calabresa (R-Libertyville) as president over the past two years.

Calabresa, who became the district's vice president by a 14 to 9 vote over County Board Rep. Steven Mountesier (R-Barrington), said she looks forward to her new position.

All hands contribute to beautification

Commands work on major, minor projects on base

By JUDY R. LAZARUS Correspondent

All Great Lakes Naval Training Center commands are moving ahead to achieve the goal of base beautification.

In outlining his plans for Great Lakes, Rear Adm. David Polatty III, Commander Naval Training Center, noted that quality of life is vital to making Great Lakes a preferred duty station. He declared that it is necessary to "improve our environment and infrastructure, so that when people come here they feel the same pride and professionalism that we do."

Each command is contributing to the overall project.

"This is an all-hands concentrated effort," said CTRCM(SW/SS) Duffy Merrill, NTC command master chief. It involves enhancing the appearance of the base, he noted, "taking care of things that have been overlooked for a while. We're trying to breathe new energy into the base. Individual commands are reassessing on a daily basis."

Chief petty officers cleaned up the center median on Buckly Road, Merrill said. "That's the gateway into Great Lakes," he pointed out.

Base beautification includes major structural repairs; road, sidewalk, and fence repairs; indoor and outdoor painting; replacing and repairing street and building signs; cleaning up of outdoor areas and insides of buildings, as well as specific quality of life projects.

Sidewalks around Bldgs. 25 and 28 have been temporarily roped off to provide protection from falling debris. Sailors from CBU-401 have replaced the chain link fence at the main gate with a continuation of the black iron fencing, and have moved a completely-refurbished A-4 Skyhawk attack aircraft from the hangar at Bldg. 215 to an area outside the Great Lakes Museum. Plans have been made to install a skating rink at the site of the old tennis courts at Camp Barry.

Public Works Center is making large building signs and ensuring that they are uniform. The command is repairing street lamps, checking areas for debris such as broken glass and overflowing garbage cans, checking potholes, taking care of ground maintenance and flagging areas which will need new grass in the spring.

"We're getting reports from CDOs on what needs improvement on base," said Lt. j.g. Ryan Perry, activity public works officer for bachelor housing.

Support for beautification projects is provided by the NTC Self-Help Department, which assists with materials, equipment and construction expertise. A number of projects, including repair work, painting, grass cutting, and outdoor clean-up, are being carried out by Sailors from Recruit Training Command's Temporary Holding Unit, noted BUC(SCW) Dennis Lassard, self-help LCPO.

Transient Personnel Unit Sailors are handling trash pick-up through the First Lieutenant's Division.

Plans have been made to provide supplies and equipment for cleaning and painting the Marina boathouse next week, according to HMC Jackie Malone. The chief, along with SKC Steve Wyer, is supervising base beautification for NTC, through the self-help department. The Tiger Team, which includes the two chiefs and their manpower personnel, are working out of the selfhelp department heaadquarters.

Scholarship pageant focuses on community over beauty

By LISA ROWE Staff Reporter

The fifth annual Miss Northern Illinois Scholarship Pageant was held at the College of Lake County with its main focus on the importance of community service over beauty and self-indulgence.

The typical pageant might include competitions such as sportswear, formal wear, speeches and interviews, which were the basis of this pageant. But where this pageant differs is in the emphasis on community service, education and responsibility, rather then outward appearances.

· Judges are looking for girls that have a radiant inner spirit, a positive attitude and who can speak with confidence and poise. Optional competitions were held-two weeks prior to the main competition. Categories from this competition included talent, photogenic, modeling as well as an essay on "How I Make A Difference in My Community."

Seven different titles were awarded to the 17 young girls competing whose ages ranged from 6-21 years old. Each participant who did not receive a Queen title received the title of Ambassador for their community.

Both Queens and Ambassadors will be serving as community representatives and will attend events such as the March of Dimes Walk and the Juvenile Diabetes Dinner. Each girl makes as average of 75 appearances, but are only required to make 10 appearances for Ambassadors and 20 for Queens.

The big emphasis on this pageant is community service. Coordinator Kelli Lichtenberger commented on their basis for competition. "Pageants have gotten a bad rap. We base our pageant on inner views, not facial beauty." Many of the girls that competed participate within their community on the weekends, allowing them time to still be kids during the week.

Queens that were crowned this year originate from Lake and McHenry Counties. This year's Petite Miss winner was Michelle Garland from Grayslake and the Preteen Miss was Chelsea Carr from Lindenhurst. The title for Junior Miss as well as Model of the Year was awarded to Charlotte Hoffman of Vernon Hills. Michelle Czach was awarded the title of Young Miss. Her sister, Marie Czach, won the Miss title and held the highest score for the scholarship pageant. Both girls live in Wauconda. Kelsey Kraft of Island Lake was awarded best division essay, best division interview, Overall Photogenic as well as the Little Miss title. The Miss Northern Illinois Supreme Star title was awarded to Samantha Hoy of Ingleside. In order to receive this title, she had to participate in three out of the four optional competitions prior to the Scholarship Pageant. Hoy had the highest overall combined pageant score and won awards for best division interview, best division essay, top six in modeling as well as the Overall Talent winner for her Irish step dance performance.

Outer-belt plan matter of time, lot of money

ore than 50 years ago, futurists and far-sighted citizens advocated regionalization of northern Illinois public transportation. The outgrowth of their advocacy resulted in the formation of the Regional Transportation Authority bringing together unifying authority over Chicago transit and suburban rail and bus facilities.

Thirty years ago supporters of suburban rail transportation began championing the cause for establishing commuter rail service on the Wisconsin Central to serve central Lake County communities. That service with a northern terminus at Antioch became a reality three years ago.

Now community leaders and politicians are hailing prospects of establishing commuter service on a long established freight railway that would link Waukegan, Mundelein-Vernon Hills, Barrington with west and south suburbs like Elgin, Aurora and Joliet. If history repeats, the historic Outer Belt Line will become operational for commuters around 2025 or so.

We mention these landmark transportation developments to point out the fact that it takes approximately 30 years for transporation initiatives to perculate through the labyrinth of governmental agencies, conflicting interests and inertia to have a good idea become reality. And have no doubt that upgrading for commuter service the tracks of the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern Railway that loops the Chicago metropolitan area is not a good idea.

The 110-mile long rail system would add a new dimension to commuter rail—-linking outlying population centers with each other rather than connecting to the Chicago hub. Metra officials have hailed the proposal, estimated to cost $1.3 billion, as a "new era" in suburban transportation.

Nearly 30 communities are envisioned as stops in the counties of Lake, DuPage, Will and Cook. Metra in 1999 authenticated the feasibility of EJ&E passenger service with either single or double tracks. Another backed with federal, state and local funding is planned to begin in early 2001.

So far only one elected official has jumped on the EJ&E bandwagon, State Rep. Terry Parke (R-Hoffman Estates). But more officials are expected to voice support as the plan takes shape.

From a historical perspective, it can be seen that a lot of time and a great deal of money will be needed to make the Outer Belt system happen. But it will happen. History tells us so.

Gambling boats could be tested

ublic support of casino gambling may be tested on both ends of Lake County in the spring 2001 elections.

One candidate in the crowded field for mayor of Waukegan will use his opposition to casino gambling as a prime campaign issue. Independent Democrat Bill Shorts doesn't believe in using a gambling boat to promote economic development. Shorts is in direct opposition to mainstream Democrats who actively seek casino gambling.

In Fox Lake, where a group of investors has maintained offices for a proposed casino license for nearly 10 years, there always has been nominal support among a handful of political leaders and businessmen for a Chain O'Lakes gambling boat. Public opinion never has been openly debated in the context of a political campaign. Candidates for mayor of Fox Lake can well be prepared to take a stand on casino gambling.

Shorts is incorrect when he says area legislators are opposed to casino gambling because of public opposition. They're not—publically. For one thing, Illinois law permits casino gambling. For another thing, the gambling industry contributes heavily to political campaigns. For the Lake County Springfield delegation, casino is a non-issue. Our state representatives like it that way.

At two Fox River locations, Barrington and Antioch, plans for casino boats were dropped under heavy fire from citizens. If there is public opposition, anti-boat forces ought to speak up. This is one instance where state politicians can't be expected to carry the ball.

VIEWPOINT

Bambi facing extermination

f only the little children knew what is happening to Bambi and Rudolph. It wouldn't make for a happy Christmas for youngsters eagerly awaiting the arrival of Santa and his faithful reindeer.

While Yule carols echo in the air, camouflaged hunters armed with high tech bow and arrow weapons are stalking wooded areas in central and west Lake County in search of Dancer and Prancer's cousins.

In Highland Park, city council members voted 4-3 to exterminate part of the estimated deer population of 39. In polite political parlance, it's called "lethal culling." Vocal opponents of the four-footed residents, who support killing about 20 animals, say deer foraging instincts are destroying trees and shrubs.

There's a real war of words being aged in the sedate North Shore community. Resident Sam Levitt said the city's information on deer population is damage and flawed. Councilwoman Karen May, just elected a state representative, sided with the deer exterminators.

The deer debate brought out testimony from Karen Purves of the Animal Protection Institute that culling (killing) only accenuates animal instincts to procreate. It boils down to whether Highland Park can kill the deer faster than Rudolph and his lady friends can produce new baby deer.

A Libertyville resident, T.L. Maddox, who owns wooded property near Fourth Lake in central Lake County, told of finding arrows in trees left by errant marksmen. Maddox, a Vietnam veteran, said the sight has created a nerve-shattering condition. Maddox said the deer are so tame hunting them is like shooting at "the meat counter at Jewel."

The Maddox property is adjacent to the home of Martha Kazak, whose experience of being accosted by bow hunters out to retrieve a wounded doe seeking refuge in her yard resulted in widespread press coverage. "All I'm trying to do is protect the little bit of wildlife that is left in the area," Maddox asserted.

Part of the problem is that a good bit of Lake County, despite rampant growth and development, provides suitable habitat for deer.

They like it here. Killing the animals doesn't seem to be the end-all answer.

No stuffy banker, Jack Reck has a collection of Christmas neckwear large enough to enable him to wear a different Yule tie every day during the holidays. The president of Village Bank and Trust on Rte. 12 delights in brightening the day for customers with his imaginative neck ties.

Going Incognito

Imagine a businesswoman who deliberately chose to make her restaurant Incognito. That's the new name selected by Mary Freemon for an eatery featuring an upscale menu and fine wines in downtown Fox Lake. Incognito sounds more intriguing than Moca Cafe, the former name of the spot that also features a wide variety of coffees and pastries.

Founder recognized

College of Lake County trustees properly recognized the contributions of Robert Wright who died this fall at age 94. A resident of Libertyville, Wright was an early advocate for community college education and served as a trustee from 1971 to 1976. He was board chairman in 1976. In addition to a resolution, trustees might consider other forms of recognition for founders.

Having a ball

Members of the Women's Board of NICASA have selected State Senators Terry Link and William Peterson as honorees at their annual benefit dinner-dance, Angel Ball, set for Saturday, Feb. 3, at Deer Path Inn, Lake Forest. While the two political leaders come from opposite parties, they often collaborate on county projects and they are good friends. Tickets for the black tie affair are $150 per person. The agency annually serves more than 40,000 persons of all races, income levels and ethnic backgrounds struggling with alcohol and substance abuse. Guests are being asked to bring a winter coat, jacket or pair of gloves for residents of Bridgehouse.

53'ers getting nasty

Rough play is being evidenced by Rte. 53 zealots. A group called the Shields Township Action Committee distributed flyers calling for the election of a new supervisor. The group is angry with Supervisor Charles Fitzgerald who pointed out that construction of the controversial highway would be a detriment to economic development in North Chicago (part of Shields Township) and Waukegan. Jabbing at Fitzgerald, the committee stated that there are no qualifications for supervisor other than residency and being age 21 or older.

Leaving a kid in a taxi—raises some questions

I'm sure that you were intrigued as I about the incident where a couple returned home in a taxicab from O'Hare Airport and realized after arriving at home that neither of them had picked up their 3-year old child, who was sound asleep in the back seat of the cab. How frightening, I thought when I first heard of the account on the radio, but what followed was truly amazing. The taxi driver was ticketed by police for not checking his cab for anything that may have been left behind.

That citation lasted a few days when some outraged citizens called Chicago police to object that it was unfair that the parents weren't charged with anything while the cabbie was charged with an infraction. The Chicago Police superintendent used good judgment in quashing the misdemeanor charge.

The matter does raise some questions. I guess that after a long flight from somewhere, someone who is tired, too, may be completely out of it, but how can the police ever think of placing a greater burden of responsibility on a cab driver than on the parents. The Chicago ordinance may be a good one so that cab drivers check their cabs after each stop in case a passenger forgets to remove all packages or belongings.

That city law even raises questions. What happens if there are more than one passenger in a taxi but going to different locations? Does the driver have to find out if a package left in his vehicle belongs to the passenger he just dropped off or the one still in the vehicle? Some passengers may take offense to just questioning whether the package belongs to them.

But, back to the incident that really happened. The Cook County guardian, when questioned about the circumstances of the case, suggested that if it had happened to a minority of color, he wondered if the police would not have called in the Department of Children and Services as a child neglect matter. Also, if it had been that minority couple, would their names have been withheld in the radio and TV reports, as was done in the case.

This incident had a happy ending, and that's great. The child is safe and sound and home where the hen she retires next month, Dee Jay Kweder will have served in the district office of three Congressmen.

Dee Jay will be missing from Congressional offices

Kweder closed the office of retiring 10th District Congressman John Porter Nov. 30, and will reopen Wednesday, Jan. 3, at the same location, 301 Washington St., Waukegan, to serve newly elected Congressman Mark Steven Kirk.

"I'm getting some vacation, but that's how the transition works," explained Kweder, a long-time resident of Waukegan and an active Republican since her youth.

"It'll be 22 years," remarked the gracious and knowledgeable grandmother. For constituents the district office is the first stop for citizens who need their Congressman's help. Kweder will be with Kirk through January.

Kweder first served the late Congressman Robert McClory, a five-year stint before he left office. Then she joined Porter's staff 17 years ago. Children and grandchildren in Denver will take up her time in the future. "I'll still be living in Lake County," she added.

Dee Jay will be remembered by many political friends and visitors to the district office as Dee Greisheimer.

Retiring Grant Township Assessor Betty Niemi leaves Pat Morris, Waukegan Township, and Gary Raupp, Vernon Township, as the deans of Lake County assessors.

First boss

Dee Jay Kweder, long-time Congressional District office aide, and her first boss in 1978, the late Congressman Robert McClory.

Niemi, 65, first woman ever elected assessor in the county, won five consecutive elections. She paved the way for other women to serve in the office when first appointed in 1980.

First choice

Illinois Treasurer Judy Barr Topinka is the first choice of the Grant Township Republican Club for keynote speaker at the annual Grant Lincoln Day dinner. President

Nancy Kubalanza is organizing a steering committee for the event regarded a "must attend" for party faithful.

Liquor apology

Zion Mayor Lane Harrison feels a public apology was in order for his remarks involving the proposed issuance of liquor licenses for a restaurant, a golf course and a new super market. Harrison sought public opinion and found that the fact finding was misconstrued as an endorsement. Harrison said there is strong support for family restaurants, expanded recreation facilities and first-rate food stores.

Stays in touch -

In the heavy duty politicking going into selection of a new County Board chair and Forest Preserve president, County Board Rep. Larry Leafblad (R-Highland Lake) was out of reach, but not out of touch. In England on a business trip, Leafblad made use of his laptop computer to stay abreast of the sifting political sands. He arrived home just in time for voting last Monday.

Keeps promise

Atty. Newton Finn, Waukegan political activist, is keeping a promise to "stay involved" made four years ago when he lost the mayoral election by four votes. As he did in 1997, Finn will be running again as an independent.

How's that for a tourism slogan?
I'm noodling this stuff around just in case Santa brings me my own star this Christmas.

Why, you may ask, would Santa in his North Pole toy shop think of packaging up a planet for me? Well, maybe he or Mrs. Claus will read or hear those Christmas advertisements from the International Star Registry.

"What do you get for the person who has everything?" they ask. "Since 1979 we have named hundreds of thousands of stars for celebrities, dignitaries and individuals worldwide. So whether it be for your sweetheart or your top sales agent, a star makes a unique and welcome gift."

And where are the offices of the International Star Registry? New York? London? Paris?

wish, just so it doesn't exceed 35 characters. "Twinkle, twinkle, little Bernie," would fit comfortably.

If I'm going to have my own star (called the Pfarr Star, so far) shouldn't I visit it as soon as space travel permits?

But a rocket-ship ride could a problem; I'm not a fan of flying. I get shaky when I'm up on ladder.

However, and whenever, I get to my star, hopefully family and friends will want to visit. I would have to draw them a map. Studying the Solar System, it looks as if you take a left turn at Jupiter and keep going many millions of miles until you reach Saturn ...

But try to avoid the Milky Way during rush hour; it's very cluttered. We have grid-lock, they have "galaxy lock." There are curds galore in the Milky Way, hear tell.

On Pfarr Star, we'll erect a sign that warns space travelers, "Last rocket fuel until Venus."

Also, I want to copy a little western United States town (whose name I can't recall, darn it) but with a wonderful civic slogan: "Home of 265 contented folks and a few soreheads."

Perhaps the biggest plus about moving to another planet is the escape from news about the Cubs, the Bears and the Bulls.

Our migration to space (there goes the neighborhood?) is still in the far distant future, so any intelligent life on my star might decide to visit me first — come down and check out their namesake. Hey, they might want to build a statue in my honor in a park or civic center.

I can picture a half-dozen little bug-eyed and big-headed extraterrestrials landing on the Antioch baseball field, grabbing the first person coming out of the nearby Antioch library and demanding: "Take us to our leader."

And I can hear the library patron saying, "Jerry Pfarr? Never heard of him."

Every law enforcement agency in the country should not wait for the federal law to tell them what they ought to know already. People should be treated the same, no matter who they are. People should not be treated differently because they look or talk different. When it takes new legislation to tell police and others in sensitive positions of government and life to do that, they are not doing their jobs or handling their responsibilities the way that they should.

Racial profiling is a subject nobody likes to talk about. The truth is that when something that is wrong isn't talked about, it isn't quickly corrected. Where racial profiling does exist, and we know that it does, those who are responsible had better get off of denial and take steps to eliminate it, or they will be the ones who will be talked about. The solution can be a quick one—Treat others as you would want to be treated.

'Adult uses' law approved

ANTIOCH—The board of directors of the Village of Antioch approved an ordinance that will restrict businesses referred to as adult uses. With this ordinance on the books, the village can regulate businesses such as adult bookstores, adult entertainment cabarets (strip clubs), adult motion picture theaters and adult novelty stores.

The language of the ordinance limits adult uses to property zoned M-1 (manufacturing district) as of January 2000. Additionally, they will not be allowed any closer than 600 feet to the property lines of residences, schools, parks, churches and other businesses that sell liquor as well as maintaining a 600 foot distance from marked state highways and the downtown overlay district.

Home Depot permit OK'd

FOX LAKE—Fox Lake Mayor James Pappas lashed out at tactics of Home Depot attorneys and reluctantly agreed to sign an easement the Volo business needed.

The vote was split among trustees, but the recommendation passed. Pappas signed the permit as Village of Volo and Home Depot lawyers gathered in his office after Monday's meeting.

"We will be your neighbors. We have held meetings with all our other neighboring towns and have been very cordial with Volo," Pappas said.

Pappas said Home Depot attorneys sent letters to village officials, addressed to former trustees, demanding the agreement for the easement be signed. Home Depot plans to open its Rte. 12 location in March.

Bridge work on schedule

INGLESIDE—By next summer, motorists should be able to use an expanded, safer and well-landscaped Squaw Creek bridge.

The Lake County Division of Transportation project is on schedule, according to Lake County Board Rep. Bonnie Thomson Carter (R-Ingleside).

"All the concrete work should be in and the approach slabs were in by Thanksgiving. Relocating the road should take place in the spring and replacing the old road in June. Landscaping should be done in August," said Carter.

The project is at a cost of $1.5 million, plus land acquisition of 16 lots, bringing the total cost to more than $2.7 million to improve the Rollins Rd. "S" curve.

Groundbreaking set for new police station

MUNDELEIN— Dec. 9 marks the date for the official groundbreaking ceremony for the village's new police station. The event will be held at 9 a.m. at the site.

Located at 200 N. Seymour Ave., the ceremony will start off the actual construction of the new facility which should begin in one to two weeks according to Sheriff Raymond Rose.

Demolition crews just completed the removal of 4 single family homes, an old garage a store and a restaurant on the property, which is directly behind the existing police station.

The community has been involved in choosing location of the new facility, said Rose, but are very supportive of having the station situated in the downtown area.

$150,000 Big Game ticket sold in Round Lake

ROUND LAKE—Someone who bought an Illinois Lottery Big Game ticket in Round Lake for the Tuesday, Nov. 28 drawing has 150,000 reasons to celebrate. The winning ticket—worth $150,000—was sold at Round Lake Citgo, 221 W. Rollins Rd. in Round Lake.

Whoever purchased the winning ticket asked for a Quick Pick computer-selected ticket (as opposed selecting his/her own numbers). The winning Big Game numbers were 15, 18, 30, 48, 49 and (08). For selling the winning ticket, the retailer will receive a bonus of $1,500.

child belongs. The cab driver doesn't have to worry about going to court to answer a charge that seemed ridiculous, and that's great, too. And, it would serve no purpose to find out who the parents were. They have gone through enough of a harrowing experience.

What would serve a useful purpose, though, is to consider for a moment what minorities often have to face when the system of justice looks differently on how to treat them. The fact is that anyone who enters the field of law enforcement should be well schooled in sensitivity training because there are too many reports that too many people are handled differently just because of their race or ethnic background. That such an issue exists as we go into the 21st century is a very sad indictment, but truism, of our times, and must be dealt with seriously by all communities and law enforcement agencies everywhere.

I have said it often that the percentage of honest and dedicated people in every profession is about the same, and that includes law enforcement. The vast majority are upstanding and honorable. But, most professions, and that includes law enforcement, will protect or cover up mediocrity or wrongdoing amongst their own because they believe that to expose it leaves a scar on all of them. But, something that is dangerously wrong to the rights and liberties of citizens cannot be allowed to fester for it will finally explode to scar entire communities, not just those paid to uphold the law.

'Tis the season for rosacea flare-ups"

As the winter wind picks up and the air turns frigid, many people find their cheeks or nose taking on a rosy glow. While it may seem like a sign of the season, that facial redness may actually be a warning sign of rosacea, a little-known but increasingly common facial disorder not estimated to affect more than 13 million Americans.

"Because rosacea's early symptoms are often mistaken for the natural effects of the weather, many people don't realize what they have," said Dr. Jerome Z. Litt, assistant clinical professor of dermatology at Case Western Reserve University. "Unfortunately, without medical treatment, this conspicuous and often embarrassing condition usually becomes increasingly severe and disruptive of daily life."

Rosacea is a chronic and progressive disorder that typically first appears after age 30 as a redness on the cheeks, nose, chin or forehead that may come and go. As the condition progresses, the redness becomes ruddier and more persistent, and dilated blood vessels may appear on the surface of the skin. Without treatment, acne-like bumps and pimples often develop, and in advanced cases, the nose may become bumpy and enlarged from excess tissue.

This is the condition, rather than alcohol, that gave the late comedian W.C. Fields his trademark red bulbous nose. While alcohol may aggravate rosacea, the symptoms can be just as severe in a teetotaler. In some cases, rosacea also may affect the eyes, causing them to feel gritty or appear watery and bloodshot.

"Rosacea symptoms are often the most pronounced during weather extremes and that is why many patients first confront this condition during the winter months," Dr. Litt said. "Anyone experiencing prolonged facial redness or other signs of rosacea should see a dermatologist for diagnosis and appropriate therapy."

In a survey of 683 rosacea patients by the National Rosacea Society, exposure to wind was cited as the most common winter factor likely to trigger a flare up of rosacea symptoms, affecting 88 percent of all respondents—including those living in mild and moderate climates as well as areas with severe winter weather. Cold weather affected 72 percent of all respondents, ranging from 80 percent in severe climates to 46 percent in areas where winters are mild.

Conversely, high indoor heat, which can be difficult to regulate in changing weather, had aggravated rosacea in 63 percent of the respondents in mild or moderate areas, while affecting 57 percent of those in severe climates.

One of the least obvious but most common winter tripwires is simple holiday stress, reported to affect 59 percent of rosacea sufferers regardless of their location. Other seasonal factors that may aggravate rosacea included heated beverages, from hot chocolate or cider to hot coffee or tea, which affected 61 percent of all survey respondents.

While rosacea has no cure, dermatologists today can successfully treat the disorder with fast-acting oral and topical antibiotics to bring the symptoms under immediate control, followed by long-term therapy with topical medication alone to maintain remission. Rosacea sufferers are also advised to identify and avoid lifestyle and environmental factors that may aggravate their individual conditions.

Here are some tips from the National Rosacea Society for avoiding winter-related tripwires:

 Cover the face with a scarf or ski mask to protect from wind and cold.

Minimize outdoor activities.

•Wear a sunscreen even in cool or cold weather.

 Dress in layers to protect against both outdoor and indoor temperature extremes.

•Reduce indoor heat.

 Take frequent breaks, if possible, to cool down when cooking.

•Avoid holiday stress by not over-scheduling.
•Lower the temperature of heated bever-

Lower the temperature of heated beverages with an ice cube, and limit consumption of alcohol.

Condell Auxiliary, dietitians team up to teach Libertyville first-graders about proper nutrition

Fifty first-graders at Rockland School learned that their bodies are like cars and the food they eat is fuel to make the "cars" run.

As part of The Auxiliary of Condell Medical Center's Healthy Kids Program, Erica Depcik, MSEd, RD, LD, and Kristin Harris, MS, RD, LD of Condell's Health Promotion Services, spoke to each class about choosing nutritious foods from the food pyramid and the importance of exercise.

During the interactive sessions, the children learned to make fruit smoothies with vanilla yogurt, orange juice, bananas and berries; ants on a log (celery slices filled with peanut butter and topped with raisins); and funny face pizzas (English muffin halves with pasta sauce, mozzarella cheese, olives, green pepper strips and a slice of pepperoni).

Each child received a canvas Condell tote bag filled with recipes and nutrition tips; granola bars and bottled water donated by Kraft Foods; and flashing safety buttons from Centre Club.

Child care providers learn how to help children breathe easier

As preschoolers head indoors this winter, many of them will be able to breathe easier thanks to a new program from the Asthma and Allergy Foundation of America. Spurred by the rising rate of asthma and food allergies among children, the voluntary health agency has launched as aggressive campaign to educate child care providers about how to better care for children with these diseases.

Hundreds of child care providers are being trained across the country to recognize the signs and symptoms of asthma and food allergy anaphylaxis, how to properly use medications, as well as steps to take if faced with a life-threatening situation. In addition, a key component of the program is learning about practical measures they can take in the day care setting to reduce a child's exposure to allergens and irritants that can cause breathing problems.

"Our goal is to help these children out of the emergency room," said mary Worstell, executive director of the foundation. "We want to raise the standard of care these preschoolers receive to help them breathe easier in a place where they spend most of their day."

To help, the foundation provides parents and child care providets with an Asthma and Allergy Action Card and an Environmental Checklist to help reduce exposure to various asthma and allergy triggers. Both tools are available by calling 800-7-ASTHMA or they can be downloaded from the foundation's web site at www.aafa.org/getajump.

Is teaching as hard as they show on t.v.?

Hi Dr. Singer,

Up until recently, my daughter wanted to be a High School teacher. She is in High School now and was really set on that as a major in school. Recently, we began watching a show called, "Boston Public." It's on Monday nights. Since watching that show, my daughter has begun to re-think her idea about being a teacher. She has seen some of that in her own school, but it didn't become apparent to her until she watched that show. I was wondering if you have watched that show and if you think it is realistic or not. From what I have seen out there, I believe it is realistic and I am not necessarily upset if my daughter changes her mind. L.L.

Hi L.L.,

I am very familiar with the show and never miss it. I do really like it and I also feel it is very much art imitating life. In my career, I have lived that show and in fact, my experience was so much like that show, it makes my blood boil sometimes when I see what goes on in that show. For those of you who are unfamiliar with the show, it is basically a fictional show about the goings on at a public High School in Boston. What becomes painfully clear in this program is the incredible disrespect students show towards teachers, faculty and each other. Also, you see many parents backing up their children's obnoxious behavior with the word, "lawsuit." You watch the faculty trying as hard as they can to be tolerant of blatantly horrible behavior by kids and I find myself really becoming upset watching how much they really take.

Is it real? Ten years ago, I worked at a program that was 10 times worse than what you see in this show. In tantrum rages, kids would send desks flying regularly at this program. Now, at that time, inclusion hadn't taken place yet, so the kids with behavior problems were in a separate, special program like the one I was at. Usual classrooms didn't have the "special needs" kids in their classrooms. Since the "special needs" kids have been included in the regular classroom, I have heard more about this type of thing in regular school. I never knew about Inclusion until I went to a seminar about Behavior Disorders and sat with some teachers. There were many teachers there who were very mad about this new way of doing things because they believed that they were not trained correctly to handle the behavior problems of the "special needs" kids and also they felt that those same kids were not getting the attention they needed. They also reported to me that, in their opinion, that the other kids were not getting the time they required because others were so needy. Teachers I know have described Inclusion to me in the following way: it basically did away with separate "special needs" programs and classrooms and "included" the "special needs" kids in the regular classroom. The purported reason for Inclusion was to take away the "stigma" from the "special needs" child and make him or her feel more included in the normal classroom and normal life. I'm not sure that this was the real motivation behind it. I'm also not sure whether it is a good thing or not.

Anyway, in the program I worked in, I saw parents threaten lawsuits and physical violence based on protecting their child's horrendous behavior. One day, I stood at the receptionist's desk with some other faculty and watched a father of one of the nastiest kids tell us that he was coming back for us with an automatic weapon because we dared to sanction his child for misbehavior. I saw kids spit in faculty faces. I saw faculty, including myself, get threats and abuse from the students in ways that were intolerable. All the time, we had to "turn the other cheek" the same way you see the actors and actresses in "Boston Public" do. I spent a few years in that place and toward the end I felt like going to work was like going to Beirut during war. Now I hear all of those kinds of things happening in the public schools. I hear it mostly through my clients and I cannot believe my ears half the time. I have incredible respect for the teachers and other faculty who go to these schools every day and deal with this stuff and I also wonder how they do it all the time and for so long!

I don't mean to be pessimistic, and I am very aware that there are a lot of good kids out there, but I do want to be honest about my experiences and what I have heard from others. I think the best thing for your daughter to do, to get an accurate picture, is for her to start interviewing teachers. She should go to several schools, in several areas and ask them what their feelings are and what their experiences have been. I think she needs a lot of opinions and a lot of thought before she makes a decision. When I worked at the program I was at, I was there in the capacity of Psychologist and not teacher, so my view might be different than others she might talk to . I did watch all of the same things the

Executive homes situated in conservation area

Sales at the Woodlands in Mundelein have surpassed the 80 percent mark with 46 of the total 57 luxury single-family homes currently sold.

Being built by Cambridge Homes, the Woodlands features more than 16 acres of nature areas and open space, mature trees, and a park with tot-lot. Five executive style single-family plans are offered, ranging from 2,783 to 3,387 square feet with up to five bedrooms and three baths. Prices range currently from $328,990 to

"A variety of excellent choices remain at the Woodlands where buyers can currently have any of the five executive-style plans built, or choose from two homes that are available for delivery in January, 2001," said Richard J. Brown, chief executive officer of Cambridge Homes. "The neighborhood setting is beautiful with an abundance of natural conservation areas. Additionally, the homes are being built on oversized lots, averaging 15,000 plus square feet that allow homes to be built far apart from one another to create an open and private feel for each homeowner."

The five plans available for The Woodlands offer a number of unique design features such as 9-foot volume ceilings throughout most of the first floors; striking two-story foyers; staircases positioned in areas other than the foyers; specially designed basements with 9-foot-high foundation walls and oversized windows; plant shelves and art niches; secondary bedrooms with walk-in closets; luxurious master suites with available vaulted ceilings including a plan with the master bedroom on the first floor; private family rooms located to the rears of the homes; and include three-car attached garages offering buyers the choice of two-car garages with extra bonus rooms or baths on the first floors.

The Mundelein area is commonly referred to as the golf Mecca of Lake County with several highly rated public and private golf courses from which to choose. Mundelein's central Lake County location offers convenient access to a number of regional attractions including the Lake County location offers convenient access to a number of regional attractions including the Lake County Fairgrounds, Great America and numerous shopping facilities.

A new community center is approximately one mile from the community, which includes a day care center and indoor fitness facility, and will soon be featuring outdoor and indoor pools and a new neighborhood shopping center is right down the street from the Woodlands. Excellent schools are another attraction, including highly rated Fremont Elementary and nationally recognized Mundelein High School, which is less than a mile from the community. Commuters have an easy trip to the Loop and O'Hare Airport via the new Metra line that stops in downtown Mundelein.

Are the best mortgage rates online? Comparison focuses on APR

The Internet has given many consumers the impression that it can do everything a traditional, retail business can do, except that it can do it faster, easier and for less money.

Just compare the price of a book online versus the same title at the mall. Check out the price of an airline ticket on the Web versus one bought from a travel agent. Look at the interest rate for that e-mortgage versus the rates offered by local lenders.

Indeed, interest rates for home loans on the Web do look pretty appealing at first glance. So, Mundelein-based Majestic Mortgage Corp. decided to find out whether the Internet really does offer the best deals. Its research makes a case that the savings Internet lenders claim to offer are nominal, and the case for using a traditional lender is made even stronger when those sometime savings are held up against the services and advice of a real-life mortgage broker or banker.

Majestic's cost comparison of online lenders versus traditional lenders focuses on APR (annual percentage rate) rather than interest rates.

While interest rates determine the monthly payment, APR factors in additional upfront costs like points and loan origination fees. (APR does not include all costs — title insurance, for example, is excluded from the APR calculation. Other fees, like express shipping charges, might be excluded too).

The federal government requires all lenders to use the same formula to calculate APR, and it requires lenders to disclose APR, as well as other loan payment information.

"APR sorts out the real quotes from the lowball quotes," said Tom Ward, president of Majestic Mortgage Corp. "A mortgage might offer a very low interest rate, but the APR can be much higher. That's because the borrower might be required to pay thousands of dollars in upfront fees to obtain that low rate."

For example, one Internet site Majestic

Mortgage researched touted a 30-year, fixedrate mortgage at 6.75 percent; however, fees for that mortgage were $5,665 for a $150,000 loan.

"When we compared that loan to a loan at 8.00 percent, with no origination fees or points and an APR of 8.066 percent, we found that a borrower who opted for the 6.75 percent rate would need almost four years to make that rate pay for itself," Ward said.

For more information and APR comparisons of Internet versus traditional lenders, go to the Majestic Mortgage Corp. Web site, www.majestic-mortgage.com. To contact Majestic Mortgage Corp., call 888-773-2771, or e-mail bestvalue@majestic-mortgage.com.

Inverness at Gregg's Landing offers homes with early delivery

The Devonshire, a 2,817-square-foot home at Inverness at Gregg's Landing. Zale Homes is the developer.

Inverness at Gregg's Landing in Vernon Hills, a maintenance-free community of 134 single-family homes, has six homes available for early delivery. Developed by Buffalo-Grove based Zale Homes, the homes are scheduled for delivery beginning immediately and running through early 2001.

Each of the six homes features a different floor plan. They offer 2,213 to 2,817 square feet, three bedrooms, 2 to 2 1/2 baths, basements and attached two-car garages. Prices range from $364,235 to $444,232.

"As these homes demonstrate, new construction does not have a mean a lengthy waiting period," said Leon Joffe, president of Zale Homes. "Quit often, meeting buyers' needs means having luxury, new-construction homes available within a shorter time frame than usual."

Inverness is located at Inverness Drive and North Huntington Drive within Gregg's Landing. In addition to the six homes for early delivery, the development features ten, oneand two-story single-family floor plans ranging from 2,153 to 2,817 square feet. Base prices are from $340,400 to $377,600.

A sample of the early-delivery homes includes:

The Grande, available for immediate delivery, has 2,406 square feet, three bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths. Priced at $396,702, this two-story home features 15-foot ceilings, in the living and dining rooms, a volume ceiling in the family room, and an eat-in kitchen with a work island, pantry, desk and patio access. The master suite has a walk-in closet and master bath with dual-bowl vanity, six-foot soaker tub, separate shower, a walk-in closet and a separate water closet.

Added features include a volume ceiling in the master bedroom, a fireplace/media center in the family room, upgraded kitchen appliances, upgraded carpeting and padding in the bedrooms and hardwood flooring in the living, dining and family rooms.

The Coventry, which overlooks the sixth fairway of the White Deer Run golf course, is available 75 days after purchase. Priced at $444,232, this two-story home has 2,554 square feet, three bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths. The home has a sunken living room, eat-in kitchen, laundry room, loft and Great Room with a two-story sloping volume ceiling. A first-floor master suite features two walk-in closets, dual-bowl sink, soaking tub, shower and private water closet.

Upgrades in the home include a volume ceiling and a bay window in the master bedroom, whirlpool tub in the master bath, fireplace/media center and two skylights in the Great Room, and a nine-foot ceiling and rough-in full bath in the basement.

'A common misconception is that in order to have a home ready for early delivery only the basics are included," said Joffe. "In reality, popular upgrades and options are preselected so that buyers interested in early delivery can enjoy a full range of amenitieis."

The Lennox has 2,650 square feet, three bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths. Priced at $364,235, this two-story home will be available in February 2001. The hom has formal living and dining rooms, a family room, den and eat-in kitchen with a bay window. The master suite features a walk-in closet and master bath with dual-bowl sinks, six-foot soaker tub, separate shower and private water closet.

Featured in the home are upgrades such as a fireplace/media center in the family room, a rough-in full bath in the basement, and a fully landscaped yard.

MEYERS

by Gary S. Meyers

This week, The Meyers Report digs into the mailbag once again to answer readers' questions and in the season for big consumer spending, credit is a hot issue.

Q. I'm getting ready to shop for my first mortgage. What can I do to make my credit look better?

A. "You probably needed to ask that question two or three years ago," said Angelo Cusinato, president of Resource Plus Mortgage, a midwestern mortgage company.

"One of the most frequent questions we get asked is about credit, and I can't emphasize strongly enough that it's one of the biggest things a lender looks at. The problem is, you can't just fix it by getting your payments up to date (at the last minute.) If you have missed payments, if collection agencies have contacted you, that's going to make it more difficult for you to get the rate you want, or even to get your mortgage."

"Unfortunately," he added, "most people don't think about their credit until they're ready to look for a mortgage. If you think that you may be looking for a mortgage, even three or four years down the road, check on your credit now. You may find mistakes, which can take several months to get corrected, or worse, you may find that you have problems that are your fault. In that case, all you can do is start making regular payments, on schedule and on time, and give your credit time to heal." Otherwise, your only mortgage option may include a much higher interest rate than the rest of the "A" credit market.

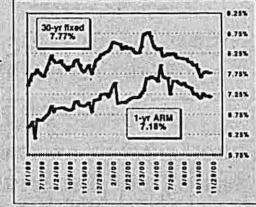

Q. I earn my income as a freelancer, so I have no steady employment. I have several steady clients, however, and I've kept up rent payments. Will my lack of an employer make it hard for me to get a

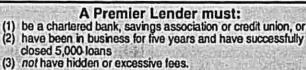

A. "If you're self-employed, you effectively have a business providing a service. You may have 20 customers, and they're different customers each year. As long as a lender can see that you are able to generate a stream of income doing what you do, that should not be an issue. That would not affect, by itself, your ability to have a loan."

"In order for you to get the kind of loan you would want," he said, "that is, the rate that is quoted in most of the newspapers, you've got to be able to document income, have good credit, and have a down payment, usually five percent. So, if you're unable to document income, you may still be able to get a loan, but you may need a larger down payment, and good credit would be critical."

schools, but in our society, and that is disrespect. Disrespect of parents, of teachers, of Gd, and each other. I think this is what makes me shake so much when I watch "Boston Public." In the show, it is apparent in each student. There isn't a respect or admiration of faculty. Instead, there is a challenge to "try and stop me from doing what I am not supposed to be doing." There is a blatant message from the kids that, "I am not just on the same level you are, I am above you, even when I do wrong." Unfortunately, in many cases these days, I think the system supports that kind of viewpoint and behavior in kids more than it stops it or sanctions it. One of the reasons you didn't see the level of school violence in the 50's that you do today is because then, kids were taught that you follow rules, respect teachers do your work and if you didn't you got severely punished. Today, as logical as punishment would be for these kinds of things, it is very transparent if there at

So, I am sorry to be so negative in answer to your question, but I always believe that honesty is the best way to go, Again, encourage your daughter to get lots of other opinions. Also, if teaching was her dream, a show wouldn't shake that. Maybe it really isn't where her heart is. Maybe she needs to do some more soul searching before she knows what she really wants to do. Maybe she should also think about teaching younger children. High School teaching may not be the thing for her. I think there are lots of things to think about before she makes her decision based on a television program only.

Carbon Monoxide: Protect yourself from this invisible poison

You can't smell it and you can't taste it, but carbon monoxide (CO) is the leading cause of poisoning death in the United States. CO is a colorless, odorless gas that is produced as a result of the incomplete burning of carbon-containing fuels. As winter approaches, Illinois residents are reminded to take extra precautions to prevent CO poisoning, as well as to recognize its symptoms and signs, and to know the proper first-aid steps to follow in the event of an

Last fall, the Illinois Poison Center (IPC), which offers free poison prevention treatment and advice via a statewide hotline, 1-800-942-5969, handled 596 cases related to CO exposures.

Common sources of CO found in people's homes include oil, wood or gas furnaces, space heaters (those that use kerosene), gas or oil water heaters, gas stoves or dryers. These appliances emit CO during regular use, and it may become a problem when there is a leak from the vent that carries CO out of the home, or when an appliance or a piece of equipment malfunctions or is poorly ventilated. Other sources of CO include: cars, trucks, motorcycles and mopeds; charcoal grills, candles and gas lanterns; and gasoline-powered lawn mowers, snow blowers, chain saws and weed-eaters.

Prevention is the key to ensuring that CO will not be a problem in your home. The following prevention tips will help to keep your family safe from possible CO exposures:

·Have all fuel-burning appliances, furnaces, vents and fireplaces inspected at the beginning of each heating season by a professional technician.

 Make sure appliances and chimneys have proper airflow.

·Do not use an oven or gas range for heating your home. .Do not let the space heater run, or leave the stove or fireplace burning while you are sleeping. ·Use charcoal and gas grills only in well-ventilated areas — never use them inside your home or in a tent.

·Have your car's exhaust system inspected for possible leaks.

•Never let your car's engine run in the garage, even if the garage door is open.

•Do not sleep in a parked car, or let anyone travel or sleep in the covered bed of a pick-up truck while the engine is running.

"Although anyone can be poisoned by CO, pregnant women, young children, the elderly and those with respiratory illnesses, heart disease or anemia are at greater risk," said Tony Burda, chief poison specialist at the IPC. "CO poisoning usually occurs slowly over a period of several hours; however, at very high concentrations, CO can kill in minutes."

Early symptoms of CO poisoning - including headache, nausea, vomiting and dizziness - can mimic the flu or other illnesses. More significant poisoning symptoms also can include a throbbing headache, drowsiness, confusion and heart irregularities. Severe poisonings can cause convulsions, unconsciousness, brain damage and even death.

if you think someone may have been exposed to carbon monoxide, fresh air is the most important treatment," said Burda. "Open the windows wide and help the victim outside. Once you are out of immediate danger, call the IPC at 1-800-942-5969 to report your symptoms."

Burda says the IPC's poison specialists will advise you regarding the need for medical care and also direct you to contact a certified health and ventilation contractor, the gas company, or the fire department for additional support if it is needed.

CO detectors are another way to protect your family from being exposed to dangerous levels of CO gas. CO detectors function like smoke detectors to warn you before CO concentrations reach dangerous levels. The Consumer Product Safety Commission recommends that CO detectors be placed on each floor of your home, especially in sleeping areas, and near any major gas-burning appliances. Using CO detectors that sound an alarm (and not just show a change in color) is preferred, since they can warn sleeping persons of potential danger. However, if you suspect there is a problem in your home, even though your CO detector alarm has not gone off, you still should have your home checked by a professional. Do not place detectors within five feet of gas-burning appliances or near cooking or bathing areas. Always follow the manufacturer's directions for placement, operation and maintenance of the areas. Always follow the manufacturer's directions for placement, operation and maintenance of the warning device. CO detectors should meet Underwriter Laboratories, Inc. standards, have a long-term warranty, and be easy to self-test and reset to ensure proper functioning. *

The IPC is the only certified, regional poison enter in the state, serving all of Illinois, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year. Staffed by physicians, nurses, pharmacists and other poison specialists, the IPC welcomes calls from the public and health care professionals on the treatment of poisonings, overdoses, medication problems, occupational exposures, hazardous material incidents and other poison-related concerns. The IPC is a program of the Metropolitan Chicago Healthcare Council (MCHC), a membership and service association composed of more than 130 hospitals and health care organizations working together to improve the quality of health care services.

Free IPC phone stickers and poison prevention brochures can be obtained by calling the IPC toll-free at 1-800-942-5969 or visiting the IPC's Web site at www.mchc.org/ipc.

Interior decorating trends for the millennium

As baby boomers growing up with the popular animated television show "The Jetsons," many of us naturally imagined that 21st century homes would be much like George and Jane Jetson's Skypad apartment: sterile, glass-enclosed space modules with metallic hues, angular furniture and a full cadre of technological enhancements. Microwaves, computers and DVD players aside, that perception - according to leading interior design specialists across the country couldn't be further from the truth.

"As our daily lives become increasingly complicated, it will be more important than ever that our homes be warm, nurturing 'cocooning' areas rather than sterile designer showplaces," explained Philadelphia high-end residential designer Marcello Luzi, ASID. "The main trend for interior design in the new millennium will be to keep things simple, clean and uncluttered, by incorporating functional design elements that soothe mind, body and spirit."

Such predictions come as nothing new to Hopkins, Minnesota-based Environmental Graphics, whose wall murals are fulfilling consumers' desires to incorporate the ancient Chinese practice of feng shui into their interior design.

"Murals create a balance of color and texture, and help to bring the outdoors in," says Elizabeth Moran, co-author of the best-selling book The Complete Idiot's Guide to Feng-Shui. "Wall murals complement the art if feng shui by helping to make one's home a harmonious haven. With harmony comes the likelihood of better health, wealth and relationships,"

Environmental Graphics' easy-to-install murals are available in 24 unique, photographic and art, designs that reflect nature, outer space and sporting events.

For a full-color brochure that includes wall mural designs and local dealer information, call toll-free (888)205-0914. ## College Sports Report: Former athletes making the grade

Former Mundelein High School graduate Ben Macklin is hoping to pick up right where he left off. Macklin, a freshman at Ball State University, earned three varsity letters while swimming for coach Rahual Sethna and the Mustangs. He will be competing in the freestyle events as part of the mens swimming

While at Mundelein, Macklin was named All-American and All-State and All-Conference as a junior. He was also a member of the USS State Championship team in summer competition. Macklin also earned two letters in water polo while attending MHS and was selected to the All-Conference team his junior and senior campaigns. He was named to the All-State team as a junior and also lettered and captained the cross country team his senior year.

Macklin is majoring in business administration and is the son of Ray and Tracey Macklin.

Gretchen McDowell, a Wildwood native and Warren High School grad, has began her senior campaign as a part of the IWU women's swimming. McDowell is one of the Titans top divers this season.

Culver-Stockton College placed 10 football players on its 2000 Heart of America Athletic Conference All-Conference team, including quarterback Jim Coniglio, a senior, from McHenry (Grant H.S.). Coniglio was named to the second team as a slotback. He orchestrated the Wildcat offense that set a new school record for total offensive yards (3,686) during the season. Coniglio was the team leader in carries (154), rushing yards (746), receptions (33) and touchdowns (14). In addition, he totaled 323 receiving yards, completed 15-of-19 passes for 72 yards and led the Wildcats with 97.2 all-purpose yards per game.

Furthermore, Coniglio, a history and political science major, was selected to the All-Academic Football team.

Brother Tony, also a senior, topped off his career by rushing for 193 yards and two touchdowns while catching 11 passes for 91 yards. His career numbers show him 16th on the school's all-time rushing list with 576 yards.

Both are the proud sons of James Coniglio of McHenry and James Coniglio of Lakemoor.

Elmhurst College junior Al Connelly (Mundelein, Mundelein H.S.) finished 13th with a time of 25:45 in the CCIW Championships. Connelly then claimed 64th-place (26:39) as the Bluejays finished seventh in the NCAA Division III Midwest Regionals.

Former Grant Community High School standout Teri LaRoche )Lake VIIla) completed a successful season while playing for the Eastern Illnois University Panther women's soccer team.

In her inagural campaign, LaRoche, a forward, played in 15 games, one of which she scored her first collegiate goal. It happened to be the game-winner against Morehead State in the OVC Tournament semifinal.

Meanwhile. teammate Kristy Zabrosky (Lake Forest, Libertyville High School), played in all 20 games for EIU, also scoring a game-winning goal at IUPUI. Zabrosky is a junior forward. The Panthers finished the 2000 season 15-4-1 overall and repeated as Ohio Valley Conference champions with an unblemished 5-0 mark.

Carmel grad and Mundelein native Gwen Illing placed in three events and one relay as the Augustana women's swimming and diving team placed third in the Illinois Wesleyan Invitational last week.

Illing was fifth in the 200 individual medley (2:26.31), fifth in the 100 breastroke (1:18.61), and seventh in the 100 butterfly

Illing is the reigning team MVP after she recorded top times in three individual events last year. Her strongest events include the individual medley and the breastroke.

Look for former Wauconda native and Wauconda High grad Krissy Schulze to turn some heads as she embarks on her debut as part of the University of St. Francis (Joliet) women's basketball team. Schulze, a junior, plays guard for the Lady Saints.

Northern Illinois University swimmer

Jennifer MacDougall (Mundelein) earned the John Tucker Memorial Scholarship at the Verizon-NIU Athletics Academic Excellence Brunch.

John was a track man who tragically passed away during warmups at the Illini Classic held at North Central College in 1981.

During his illustrious career at NIU, John was the Central Collegiate Conference hammer throwing champion in 1980 and also placed in the top-3 in the MAC Championships the

According to NIU Athletic Director Mike

Korcek, the university currently offers 20 endowed scholarships.

> "John was a great guy and sports fan," said Korcek. "It's a nice way to carry on their legacy. It just makes you really think about things and life in general. You can't take anything for granted."

Tucker's scholarship started in 1982.

And, Lake Forest College senior and former Libertyville High bowling star Jordan Leasure has returned to the area to be an assistant varsity girl's bowling coach at Lake Forest High School.

Look for a feature on Jordan in the 12-15 edition.

College of Lake County Sports Roundup

No lack of effort for CLC hoops teams

By JOHN PHELPS Sports Editor

It's only a matter of time before the effort on the court starts paying dividends in the 'W' column. But for now, the Lancer men's and wornen's basketball teams certainly have earned an 'A' for effort.

"We've been playing nothing but good teams," said women's head coach Bill Braman. "Each time out we get a little better. We have a lot of smooth and solid players. We just need to keep working on the intensity level for an entire game and improve on our rebounding."

Flashes of that 'intensity' level were imminent during a Nov. 30 77-40 loss at home to Illinois Valley.

Lake County (0-6) made several small runs in the second-half but Illinois Valley was always there to answer.

Despite the loss, several bright spots were demonstrated, especially in the play of former Round Lake Panther freshman guard Stacie Peterson, who popped in a team-high 14 points. Sophomore Jessica Gutierrez, formerly of Mundelein High, complemented her with 10.

"The girls realize they have played good teams," added Braman. "Basically we're using these games to get ready for conference playthat's where we hope to make some noise."

Another bright spot in the near future looks to be the play of former Grant Bulldog, freshman center Stephanie Cripps, who chipped in four points against IVCC.

"It's definitely a lot faster pace out therethere's a lot more fast breaks," said Cripps, who is just now getting back to 100 percent following a battle with a bronchial infection. "We're waiting for the conference. We can see what we need to improve on with these early-season non-conference games."

Sophomore guard Erin Reipe has also been absent, who has been in Europe as part of a student exchange program. The Lancers have also been without the services of Kalia Martin, formerly of Zion-Benton High School, who is sidelined with a torn ACL injury.

"There are no bruised spirits on this team and there's still a long way to go in the season," added freshman guard Katie VanDuzer, a former North Chicago Warhawk. "We've got a few injuries and some sore ankles but hopefully we'll be healthy by the time Conference play starts."

The Lady Lancers open
Skyway play Jan. 9 with a 5:15 p.m. away date against

Morton.

Meanwhile, the men's team is also showing it can play with the best. Only thing-they also have to maintain that intensity level for a full 40 minutes.

"If not for a couple of 2-3 minute stretches, we'd be on the winning end in more games. The first three minutes of the game seems to always put us behind the gutter," said men's head coach Rob Sandler. "We're recovering well from deficits but we need to be ready to go right away."

Again, the 98-90 loss to Illinois Valley doesn't erase an outstanding effort by many players, most notably sophomore forward Aaron Coleman, who pumped in 26 points and was instrumental in the Lancers' erasing as much as an 18-point deficit in the second half.

"He's definitely a workhorse for us," noted Sandler. "Overall, our defense has been pretty good and is pretty much what's been keeping us around to this point. We need to work more on our passing."

Former Zion product and freshman Daniel Garrett chipped in with 20 points and former Carmel grad Jim Nilles added 12 in the losing effort.

The Lancers, now 2-7 on the young season, also open Skyway action Jan. 9 at Morton in a 7:15 p.m. contest.

Both teams host Kishwaukee Dec. 9. The women's team plays at 1 p.m. while the men's game tips-off at 3 p.m.

Other results Men's Basketball

Despite five three-pointers and 21 points from Jim Nilles, the Lancers (2-8) lost to South

Suburban 66-53 on December 2. Daniel Garrett had 10 points, five assists and three steals, Matt Moss had ten points and nine rebounds and Ross Eisenbarth chipped in with five boards.

"We played a strong zone defense in the first half," said head coach Rob Sandler. "But we couldn't get closer than five points in the second half."

Women's Basketball

The Lady Lancers (0-7) remained winless on the season after a 97-35 loss to South Suburban on December 2. Jessica Gutierrez had 11 points and Karrie Hagi chipped in with eight points.

"The final score does not reflect the play of CLC in the first half," said head coach Bill Braman. "Foul trouble and poor shooting plagued [us]."

Lancer News and Notes

CLC had their fall sports night and members of the men's and women's soccer teams were honored with various awards.

The men's soccer team won the Skyway conference title for the seventh time in 10 years. Players that were honored include: Josh Moody (First team All-Conference), Drew Jung (Second team All-Conference), Matt Johnson (Second team All-Conference, Second team Region IV), Dan O'Brien (First team All-Conference, Second team Region IV), Jon Mendelke (First team All-Conference, First team Region IV, CLC Most Valuable Defender) and Juvenal Castrejon (First team All-Conference, Skyway Conference MVP, First team Region IV, CLC Most Valuable Offensive Player). Head coach Tom Holevas was named the Skyway Conference Coach of the Year.

The women's soccer team won their first ever Skyway Conference championship and finished second in the state of Illinois. Players that were honored include: Tina Brooks (First team All-Conference, First team Region IV), Jen Beketa (First team All-Conference, First team Region IV), Brook Lorang (First team All-Conference, First team Region IV), Anna Turk (First team All-Conference, Second team Region IV, CLC Most Improved Player), Jaime Pospichal (First team All-Conference), Jessica Eder (Second team All-Conference), Reilly Fenters (Second team All-Conference), Janelle Buehler (CLC MVP), Nicole Sowizdrzal (Second team All-Conference). Head coach Dave Beck was named the Skyway Conference Coach of the Year and the Region IV Coach of the Year.

And, the CLC Baseball Camp will be hosted by the college from 1 p.m..-4 p.m. on December 26 through the 29th in the CLC gymnasium. The camp will be instructed by Lancer baseball coaches Gene Hanson and Glen Jewell as well as several current team members.

Players will improve their skills in the infield, outfield and at the plate. The camp is limited to 36 boys aged 14-15 only. The cost of the camp is $80 dollars and all participants will receive a camp T-shirt. All those interested should make checks payable to: CLC Baseball. ## CLC's Nilles showing he's a prime-time player

To coin the old phrase, you can't stop himyou can only hope to contain him.

That's because, chances are, when College of Lake County men's basketball player Jim Nilles gets his hands on the ball, fireworks are bound to happen.

But even when guarding the sophomore shooting guard, containing him is not always a cetainty.

Nilles lit up the junior college scene as a freshman, nailing a nation-leading 161 trey's last season. With his 23.5 points per game average, the former Carmel and Round Lake product also finished sixth overall in scoring average for junior college's.

Well, he's back and up to his old tricks yet again. Through 11 games, Nilles has hit 37 bombs from behind the arc and looks to be on his scoring average of 23 points per contest once again.

I get goose bumps when he starts going on a tear like that," said Lancer men's Head Coach Rob Sandler. "It's just very thrilling when he on automatic and can't miss."

Sandler makes inference in particular game when Nilles canned 10 three-pointers en route to a season-high 37 points last week against Triton. His career-high at CLC came against St. Xavier, when he pumped in a ridicu-

"It feels great to tear it up like that, especially when teams know you can shoot them," said the 6-foot, 1-inch Nilles, who resides in Lake Villa. "When you get into that zone, you constantly want the ball."

Nilles' success hasn't come without a lot of hard work, to say the least.

Last season, the sharp-shooter would spend up to 20 hours extra per week working on his shot in the CLC gymnasium. However, with 18 hours of classwork this semester and 20 forthcoming in the spring, Nilles has had to cut back on his extra shoot-around sessions,

"Sure I'd love to spend that much time practicing but I'm also focusing on graduating on time and to do that, I had to load up on the hours," he said.

Doesn't look like it matters to much to this point, on the basketball-court, that is.

Nilles' success on the hardwood stems not only from practicing hard and long, but moreso from a tremendous desire to win. You could also say that he, to a degree, likes to prove peo-

After playing freshman ball at Round Lake, Nilles transferred to Carmel for his final three years. He skipped basketball his sophomore campaign before seeing little playing time as a junior.

But this only helped fuel the fire.

The summer in between his junior and senior year's, Nilles practiced with

"I always liked to shoot the ball far and the coaches said I couldn't, it just made me go and practice harder that summer," reflected Nilles. "I guess I like proving people wrong."

And while he didn't get to start until the sixth game his senior year, Nilles took full advantage of the opportunity. He averaged 13 points per contest, a season that also saw him lead the team in three-pointers.

Now an established CLC player, Nilles has had more on his mind than just launching the long ball.

"I'd love nothing more than to play at a Division I school next year," he said. "But if that's not possible, just to continue my collegiate career at any college my last two years would be very rewarding and satisfying."

And Nilles should get that chance. In addition to being deadly with the jumper, he's definitely improved his stock, especially in the eye's of Sandler.

"He's been working on his inside game and has improved immensely on his defense," noted Sandler. "He's also become very patient in finding teammates and he is shooting with a lot of confidence right now."

And Nilles couldn't agree more that having a better all-around game can only help.

"It's all about taking it to that next level," he said. "I think every facet of my game is coming together."

But just where does that confidence factor come from?

Forget about the success to this point and the fact that practice makes perfect. It had to start somewhere.

The silky-smooth rainbow jumpers that fans will most likely see over at the College of Lake County didn't happen without the help of a very special person in Nilles' life.

That would be his uncle, Ryan McKenzie.

While living in Chicago with Ryan, Nilles learned about the mechanics and the art of shooting.

"When I was young, I used to shoot underhand because the ball was too big and I couldn't shoot it overhand," Nilles recalls. "Finally, when I was about 9 or 10-years-old, my uncle taught me to shoot overhand."

In the process, Nilles took his lumps and bruises from Uncle Ryan.

"He beat me all the time in one-on-one," said Nilles. "Then at last, about a year ago, I beat him for the first time. Now I don't think he wants to play me anymore,"

Trust us Jim.

A lot of people probably don't want to play you one-on-one.

LCB to hold winter clinic

Even with the winter weather fast approaching the Midwest, Lake County Baseball is looking forward to the 2001 baseball season by providing its annual winter baseball clinic. The camp will consist of eight weeks of specialized, individualized training for ball players from 9-12 years of age. Campers may register for either Saturday or Sunday session, whichever fits their schedule. Campers will be divided by the age of the ballplayers to facilitate and tailor the instructions to the respective

On Saturday and Sunday, Session I (10:30noon)) is for 9 and 10 year olds. Session II (noon-1:30 p.m.) is for 10 and 11 years olds. Session III (1:30-3:30 p.m.) is for 11 and 12 year

The camp will teach the skills and techniques of hitting, pitching, catching, fielding, base running and bunting. Each week will feature a specialized aspect and skill with qualified instructors who will instruct in that training for the week. Each week will also feature hitting drills. This clinic is the perfect spot for the ballplayers to practice in their own "spring training" for the 2001 baseball season. Camp will run for eight weeks on Saturday and Sunday starting Jan. 27 and 28 and will run through Saturday March 17 or Sunday, March 18.

Camp will end in time for the ballplayers to participate in their own community house leagues. This year Lake County Baseball's winter training camp will be held at Wilmot Elementary School gym in Deerfield and not at Lake County's indoor facilities at Fort Sheridan. The navy is not cooperating with getting the new lease for the facilities and refusing to meet with Lake County Baseball at the present time. So with over 50 campers already pre-registered for the winter clinic, Lake County baseball arranged to move the camp to an accommodating the convenient location-Wilmot Elementary.

Head instructor for the camp is the director of Lake County Baseball, Coach Art Mansavage. His son, Mac Mansavage and other college ballplayers, coaches and scouts from the area, will assist him. The camp sessions will be limited in size in order to maintain an optimum ratio of instructors to campers. For more information on the winter training camp, contact Lake County baseball at 945-9606.

A Funeral Home Serving All Your Needs Over 50 Years of Caring, Dignified Service

Family Owned and Staffed • Traditional Services • Available 24 Hours A Day Serving Mc Henry & Lake Counties • Pre-Planning • Cremation Services

Remember When The Word "Service" Meant Something?

We remember when people took the time to serve others. Our family has been helping families here for many years. As our town has grown, we have grown too, with more specialized services, such as out-of-town arrangements, pre-arrangements, cremations and a grief recovery program.

Even though we have grown, our dedication to service is still the same as it was years ago. And, we think that's really something,

First, lets take a look at how you can establish your financial value in the job market. Earlier this year I did a series of articles on this topic in gas, oll changes, increased insurance costs and depreciation of your cars all costly, not to mention the loss of productive time.

Call (847) 223-8161

So, you want to be a Millionaire? (Part One) It seems that everywhere you turn these days we hear about Incredible salaries and along with the people who earn them. Even some of the television game shows we watch infer that we are worth a million dollars. In fact, we hear so much about money that we can sometimes get a distorted view of our own value in the market place. It is natural for each of us to want to earn as much as possible, and to be compensated fairly for our efforts. However, it is difficult to know you're exact worth in the market place, and there is a trade-off for earning top compensation.

this column. If you need a reprint of those articles you can get them from your local newspaper. In those articles I stressed that it is important to evaluate benefits as well as salary or wages. Intangible benefits are also important. If you live in a major metropolitan area, there is a significant saving if you have a job that is ten minutes from your home as opposed to a job downtown where you need to spend wo hours in traffic and then spend ten dollars on parking every day. The Expensive clothing can also be an additional cost. Working in a job where you need to wear professional clothing is more costly than a job where you can dress casually. For many people childcare is also a major concern. It can be very costly. Working for a company that has a cost reduced day care center decreases that cost. There are some companies that allow people to clothing issues for some people. However, these companies are rare. More companies are experimenting with telecommuting every day because they can't find needed qualified employees. However, few have been able to manage telecommuting successfully. There is a slight increase in companies offering this option every year. But, in the humble opinion of this writer, this option will disappear from corporate America the next time we have a down turn in the job market. Only by evaluating salary/wages, benefits and cost reductions will you be able to evaluate the real value of a Job. All three can be quantified through research. Insurance benefits can be evaluated by calling your insurance agent. A value can be associated to time off by calculating the cost of a telecommute, or work from home, coming to the office only for important meetings. This, of course, eliminates almost all of the childcare and day's work and multiplying it by the number of holidays and vacation days. Every benefit has a value. Next week I will start an in depth look at look at the balance between compensation and the tradeoffs associated with higher compensation.

How To The Job

By Nancy Sakol

I was writing to find out if you can help me find out the reason I was fired from my job with (name withheld). I had been working there for over 6 years and was terminated last week and no reason was given to me when I was let go. It was near the end of the day and I received a call from the Personnel office asking me to stop in there on my way out. I did. I walked in and was asked to sit down. I was immediately told by (name withheld) that would be my last day. I was handed my final paycheck as I was told I would then be escorted to my desk to clean out my belongings. I was totally dumfounded as I cleaned out my desk with a security guard at my side. I was then escorted to the door and left. I still don't know why I was let go. I called the Personnel Manager the next morning, but I have not received a call back. I feel that I am owed an explanation. Could you possibly help? Thank you. E.K. (via e-mail)

We got right on it for you. In speaking with the Manager of Personnel for your former employer, 1 was told that this termination had taken place within the past 72 hours, and 48 of those hours were a weekend whereby the company was closed over a weekend as usual. I was told that when the company brought you in to the personnel department and told you of your termination, you never asked for a reason. Instead I was told that your reaction was a "tirade" witnessed by several employees. There was a point I am also told that your actions caused a couple of employees to feel threatened by your actions. Understanding of course that terminating employees is never an easy task for the terminated or the terminator. It was stated that you had never asked the reason why you were being terminated, but rather immediately started raising your voice among other things, I was told. The company has informed me they will be sending you a certified letter, shortly. Just a word of advise. When an employee is terminated for what ever reason, it is important to leave like a professional. The way you respond and the actions you take at that point will follow you... guaranteed! You never know when you will need the company for a reference on former employment. Also take into consideration that it may be that a company is terminating the position that you were in, however, there may be another opportunity within the company that you may miss out on by showing a bad side. In your case, it was told to me that you never gave the company a chance to tell you what you think before you react. Good Luck.

A Christmas Tradition with the Nick Family

For forty-four continuous years, it has been our family tradition to send out family photograph greetings for Christmas. It started in 1957 with just three of us; and now has grown to include our five daughters and their families. Two of our daughters each have a set of twins so just coordinating the date, time and color scheme for the picture requires timing, planning, and stamina. Friends and family across the USA make it hard to stop this tradition as they send great comments, compliments and continue to request that we never stop the continuity of the Christmas family photograph cards.

Holiday Adventures Camp in Waukegan

he Waukegan Park District announced today that the Holiday Adventures Camp for children 5-12 years old is now open for registration. The Holiday Adventures Camp takes place during the December and January school break and advance registration is required for each child. All participants must bring a bag lunch every day. Children five years of age must have completed kindergarten in May of 2000 in order to participate. The cost for the program is $20 per day per child, $22 for those who live outside the Waukegan Park District boundaries.

Each day the camp is in operation, parents bring the children to the Belvidere Recreation Center by 7:30 in the morning and pick them up at 6 p.m. All children must be pre-registered for each program by December 22, but don't wait until the last minute because this camp fills up quickly! The following programs are available during the Holiday Adventures Camp 2000-2001:

Rink Side Sports, December 27

One of the newest entertainment centers at Gurnee Mills where the children will play games, eat a slice of pizza, the ice skate. All children must wear socks or they will not be able to ice skate. Children must still bring a snack/lunch.

JFK Health World, December 28

Children will learn about health, fitness and active lifestyles. This is always a favorite destination for all age groups. Please bring a sack lunch.

High Touch/High Tech, December 29

Children will experience hands-on excitement with our visitor from High Touch/High Tech as they involve us in fun and interesting activities. We will also celebrate the Holidays with a fun party and activities, including cookie decorating, music and dancing and a special arts and crafts project. Don't forget the sack lunch.

Water Works,

January 3

Children will be delighted as they splash around in this indoor water park. Enjoy the water slides, the water playground and the rapid water channel. A bathing suit and towel. are required for this outing. Please pack separate clothes bags and lunches for each sibling.

Adler Planetarium,

Experience a day of astronomy and space exploration at the Adler Planetarium. Visit the planets, moons, stars and distant galaxies while you catch up on the latest news from space. Don't forget your lunch!

Kenosha Public Museum, January 5

Discover the history of the general geographical area at the Kenosha Museum. See exhibits on wildlife, learn Native American games and much more. Please bring a sack lunch.

For more information on these or any other activities of the Waukegan Park District, please call 360-4700.

Wise men gather their gifts of the season at Leider's Garden Greenery.

What would the holidays be like without the vibrant color and majesty of poinsettia plants? Whether they are placed at an entryway or as a centerpiece, as hearth decor or Christmas tree accompaniment, poinsettias are a beautiful way to make the holidays festive. These plants are also great gifts for that special hostess, faithful friends, and those relatives we greet during the season.

Our poinsettia plants are grown right in the greenhouse, for outstanding quality and color clarity to stay healthy all through the holidays and well into the new year. Stop in and see our display of red, white and pink plants.

All Aboard!

The Station arrives for the holidays at the Museum of Science and Industry

Trains are an exciting addition to the holiday season. No tree ever seems complete without a train chugging beneath its bottom boughs! This year, the Museum of Science and Industry is proud to feature The Station, an elaborate model railroad exhibit, as part f the 59 annual Christmas Around the World and Holidays of Light celebration.

Measuring approximately 700 square feet, The Station features more than 25 trains of three different gauges running simultaneously through intricately created landscapes. The exhibit is housed in a replica of a Victorian train station complete with a 27-foot tall clock tower.

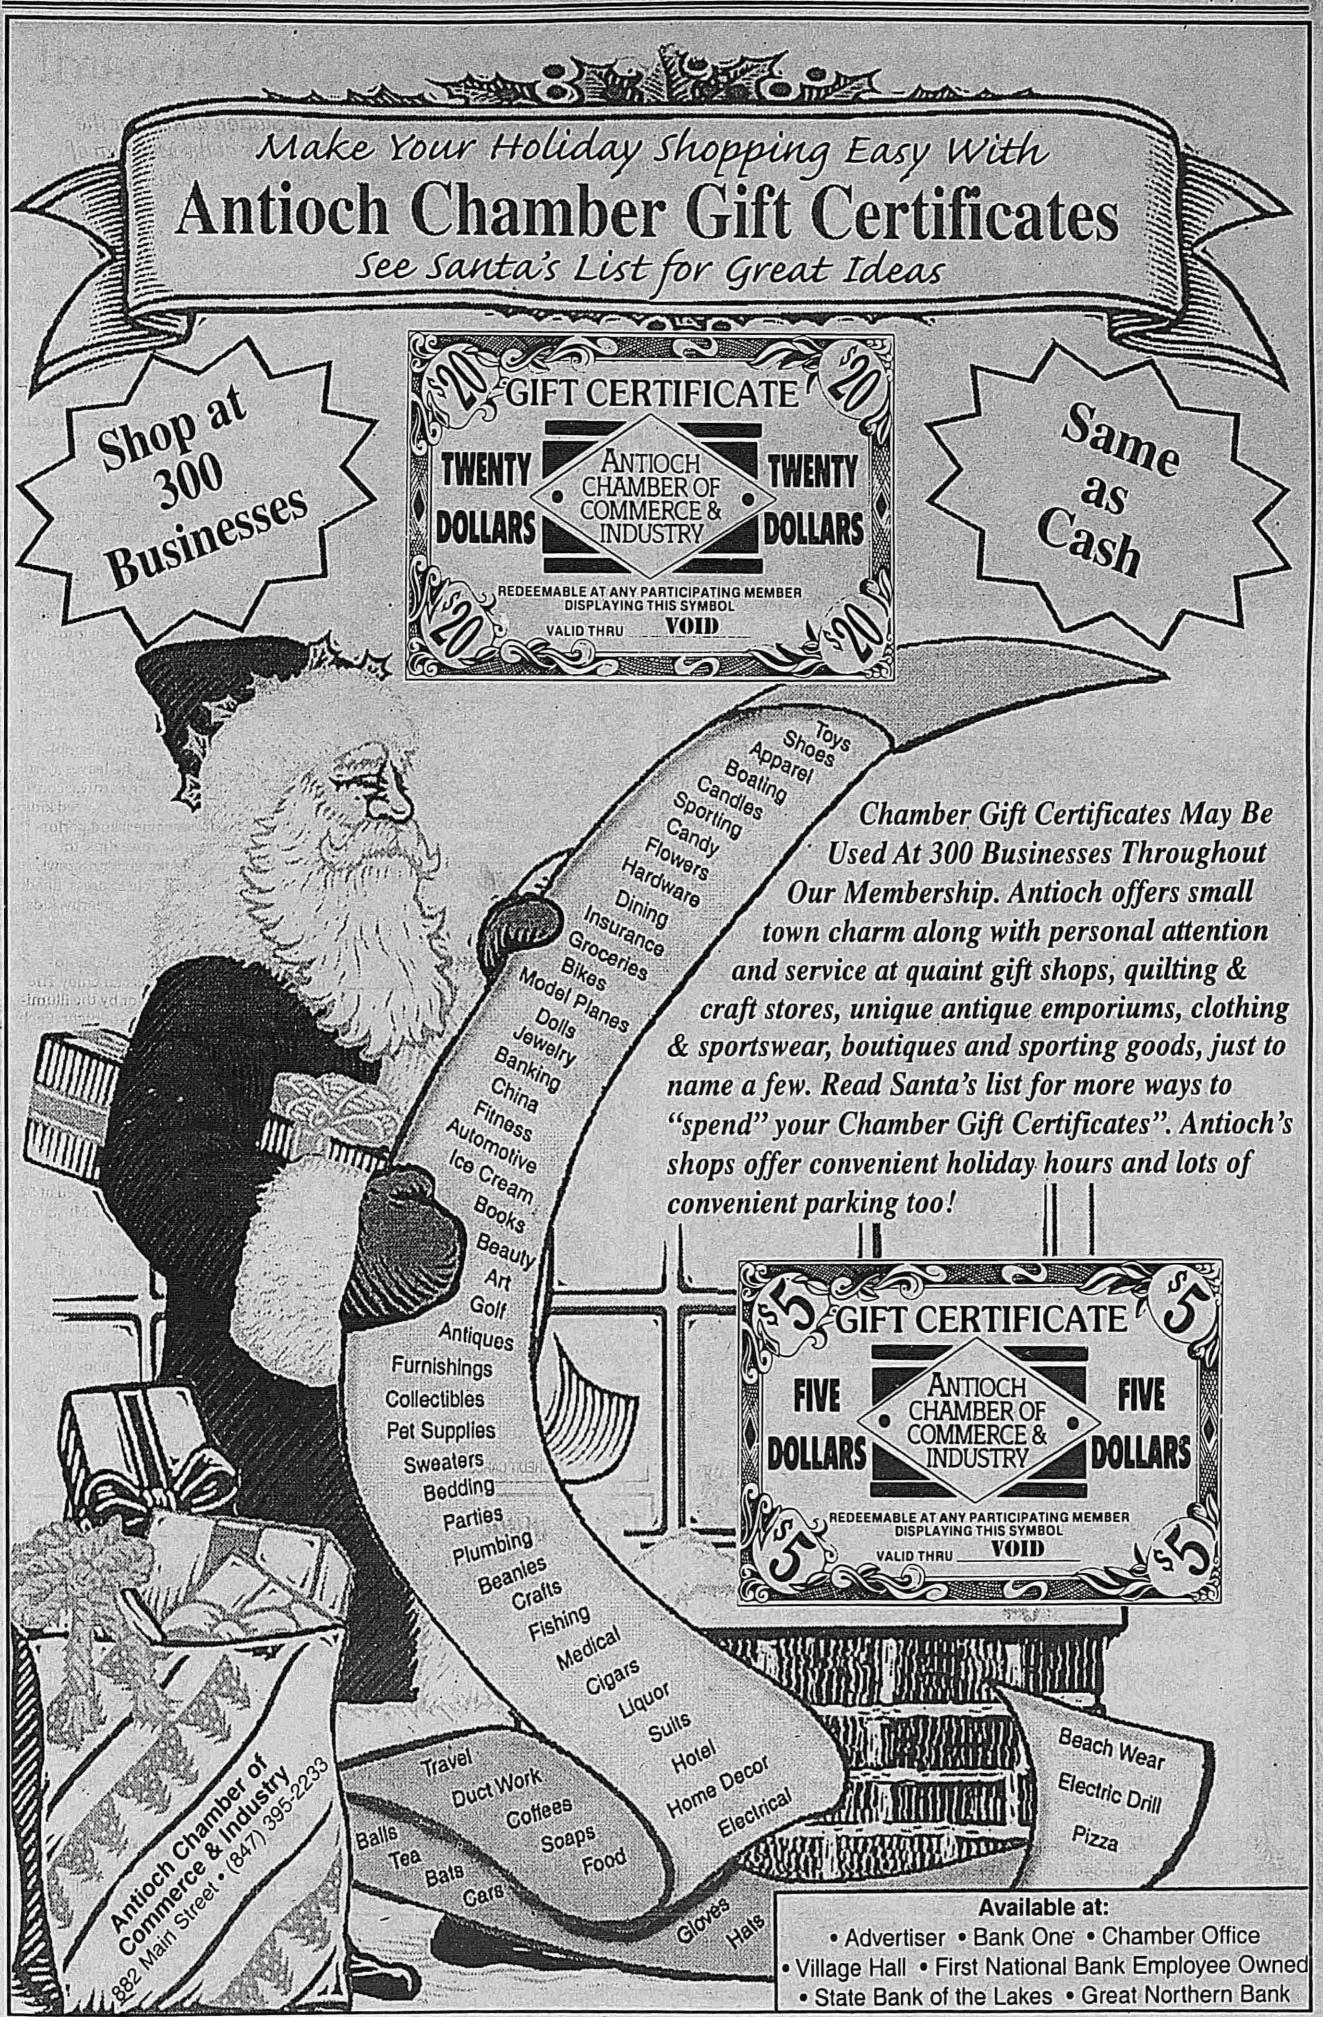

The Station will transport Museum guests on a whimsical journey through time. Beginning the journey in the spring of 1940, trains and trolley cars bustle past with passengers to and from the rail station, set before a backdrop of the famous New York City skyline. Traveling into summer, guests will not be able to pass by a parade in the river city of Generak without stopping to look as it nears a theater featuring Citizen Kane. The journey continues into the Catskill Mountains with logging trains, fly fishermen and ambitious mountain hikers. As the leaves start to change color, a traveling carnival complete with moving rides has attracted kids of all ages with food, games, and performances. As the temperature dips, the landscape is now blanketed with snow! Here comes the North Pole Express, filled with special deliveries, while nearby, kids and their pet dogs enjoy ice skating on a frozen pond.

Featuring a computerized day-tonight lighting cycle, guests can enjoy The Station by the light of day or by the illuminated windows and skylines at night. Each layer of the exhibit is complete with animation's, featuring more than 1000 people, animals and picturesque scenes. Guests could spend hours marveling at the incredible detail that makes The Station a spectacular addition to everyone's holiday planes.

Spend your holidays with the Museum of Science and Industry! Located at 57 Street and Lake Shore Drive, the Museum is open everyday of the year except December 25. Hours are Monday through Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and from 9:30 a.m. to 5;30 p.m. on weekends and holidays. Christmas Around the World, Holidays of Light and The Station is included with general admission pricing, 47 for adults, $6 for seniors and $3.50 for children ages 3-11. Every Thursday is free day. To plan your visit to the Museum of Science and Industry, please call 9773)684-1414 or visit our web site at www.msichicago.org.

Red Hot Cinnamon Applesauce

Leatrice Russell Green . Libertyville

Not only does it have a great taste, the bright color encourages the appetite. It is easily made a day or two ahead of time.

2 cups water

1/2 cup cinnamon candles

2 small boxes cherry-flavored gelatin

2 cups unsweetened applesauce

1 tbs. lemon juice

1/2 cup pecan bits

Dissolve and boil the candies in the water. Add gelatin and stir untilthoroughly dissolved. Add remaining ingredients, mix thoroughly and pour into 9" x 13" pan.

Scalloped Sweet Potatoes with Apples

RoseMarie Garraughty Grayslake

3 large sweet potatoes

3 Granny Smith apples

3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar

1 tbs. grated orange rind

1 tsp. salt

1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon

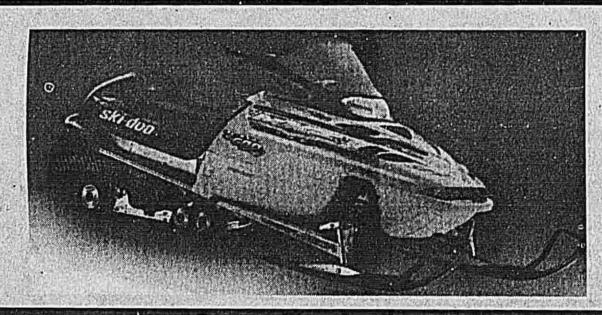

1/4 cup butter or margarine, cut up

Cook sweet potatoes in boiling water to cover 45 minutes; drain and cool slightly. Peel and cut into 1/4" thick slices. Peel, core and thinly slice apples into rings.

Combine brown sugar and next 3 ingredients...

Arrange half of potato slices and half of apple slices in a lightly greased 9"x 13" baking dish. Sprinkle with half of brown sugar mixture, and dot evenly with half of the butter. Repeat with remaining ingredients.

Bake at 350° for 1 hour. Serve warm.

Mushroom Stroganoff Soup

6 cups (3 med.) diced russet potatoes, unpeeled

1 1/2 cups diced yellow onion (reserve 1/2 cup)

1 beef bouillon cube

4 tbs. butter

6 cups (1 lb.) sliced mushrooms

1/4 cup soy sauce

2 tbs. Spike or season salt to taste

1 tbs. basil

1 tbs. parsley flakes

1 tbs. granulated garlic

2 tsp. celery seed

8 oz. cream cheese

4 oz. shredded sharp cheddar

2 cups sour cream

1 oz. crumbled blue cheese (optional)

1 cup milk

1 cup green peas

8 oz. egg noodles, cooked until just tender, rinsed and drained

Jill Niedzwiecki Round Lake

Cooking time: 45 minutes

In a 5-6 quart pot, combine water, potatoes, 1 cup onions and bouillon cube. Bring to a boil. Cook uncovered over medium heat about 20 minutes or until potatoes begin to dissolve. Stir occasionally.

Meanwhile, in a large skillet, saute the reserved onions with the mushrooms in butter until the onions are tender and the mushrooms reduce in size. Add soy sauce, Spike, basil, parsley, garlic and celery seed to the mushroom mixture and saute for another 2 minutes. Add this mixture to potatoes and water.

In a blender, blend cheeses, sour cream and milk until smooth; add to the soup pot. Add peas and noodles and heat gently, stirring often until the peas are tender and everything is hot. Do not boil.

paper crown.

· Why are there heart-shaped baskets on a Swedish tree?

During the holidays the baskets are filled with candy.

· What prompted Austrian Father Joseph Mohr and a church organist Franz Gruber to write the song "Silent Night"?

The song was written for Midnight Mass because mice had eaten through the bellows of the organ and it could not be used during mass. Father Mohr and Gruber performed "Silent Night" acoustically.

What do Belgians serve to commemorate Epiphany?

Belgian's serve a moist cake that has a bean placed inside one piece. The person who finds the bean is crowned king/queen for the day in honor of the Magi present at Christ's birth.

· How did Boxing Day, a Canadian holiday, receive its name?

Boxing Day, the day after Christmas, gets its name from the old custom of giving. Employers would give their servants Christmas boxes made of earthenware. Inside the box, money was hidden and the servants would retrieve the money by smashing the box to tiny bits.

· What legend guides Bielarusians in decorating their tree?

Trees are decorated in accordance to the Bielarusian legend of a fairy that appeared to a family when they were searching for their perfect tree. The fairy held a tree decorated in all the colors of the rainbow. Families now decorate their trees with geometric shapes made out of straw.

 Why is a pickle ornament placed on the German tree?

The pickle is the last ornament placed on the tree. When the tree is presented to the children, they scurry to find the pickle. The child that finds the pickle receives a special gift left by Saint Nicholas.

 What are Scottish "crackers"? Christmas "crackers" are small paper novelties that make a loud noise when the ends are pulled. They usually contain gifts, including a

· What do Muslims do when observing Ra-

They fast. According to the Muslim religion, in the ninth month, when the full moon appears, a fast begins. During the next month, Muslims will refrain from food, drink and tobacco from sunrise to sunset. They will spend much of this time in mosques praying.

· What is the focal point of the Italian Christmas season?

The nativity scene or creche.

 Why are firecrackers thrown at the Golden Dragon during the Feast of Lanterns, a Chinese celebration?

According to legend, the Golden Dragon has been asleep for a year. He will remain awake only during the Feast of Lanterns parade and will then go back into hibernation when it ends. To prevent the dragon from going to sleep during the parade, people throw firecrackers in its path to keep it awake.

· What is the African-American cultural holiday, Kwanzaa, based on?

In Swahili, Kwanzaa means "first fruits of the harvest" based on seven important principles. The family lights one candle on the kinara (a seven-tiered candelabra) each night for one of the seven principles. The principles are: umoja (unity), kujichagulia (self-determination), ujima (collective work and responsibility), ujamaa (cooperative economics), nia (purpose), kuumba (creativity) and imani (faith).

· What other holiday do Swedes traditionally celebrate?

St. Lucia Day on December 13. Originally, on the shortest day of the year, St. Lucia, whose name in Latin (lux) means light, became the symbol of new hope.

How to HELP... GIVE Where to UNE

The holiday season is upon us. While you ponder what gifts to give your loved ones, we urge you to take a few moments to think of those less fortunate and those in need of the most basic elements of life.

There are many local and regional groups in the area that rely on the kindness of the community to help others and many are in desperate need of assistance.

Following is a list of organizations, both local and national, that accept donations of money and goods or that require volunteers to accomplish their goals. The groups vary in purpose and in their levels of need. Contact information is provided so that readers can call or write for more information.

Helping those in need is a wonderful way for your family or business to come together and give back to the community. "Need knows no season," so please consider using this list throughout the coming year and sharing it with others. Various organizations will be featured throughout the holiday season, so keep reading.

Please note that we have gathered this information from various sources and cannot guarantee the integrity of each organization. You are urged to learn as much as you can about each agency before deciding to donate funds. Lakeland Media does not accept liability for any misleading information that may have been provided.

Local Food Pantries

One of the easiest ways for people to help others in the area is by donating food for the hungry.

The Make-A-Wish Foundation exists to fulfill the dreams and wishes of seriously ill children and to make life a little MAKE brighter for many families. The group provides hope, strength and joy during a very difficult time in a child's life. Families often remark that the wish experience empowers their children and becomes a sort of emotional treatment for the child's illness. The most common illnesses are leukemia, cystic fibrosis, muscular dystrophy, genetic disorders and AIDS.

How to HLLI... GIVE Where to UNE

Make-A-Wish of America has fulfilled 80,000 wishes worldwide since its inception in 1980. The local, northern Illinois chapter has fulfilled 3,000 of those wishes to children in the 24 northern-most counties of Illinois.

Monetary donations and volunteers are always welcome. Also sought after is the donation of frequent flyer miles for air travel. These miles help fund the travel of children and families. The McDonald's corporation and its employees recently donated more than 2 million miles to the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Northern Illinois.

NEWSPAPERS

December 8-14, 2000

holiday season is wonderful for many reasons. It enhances good will towards others, renews faith, adds joy, sparks our eyes with colorful lights and decorations, and permeates the air with the aroma of freshly cut pine, cinnamon and nutmeg, peppermint, and the Yule log burning.

The good tidings and the thrill of the season can cause many of us to become generous beyond our means, and New Year's resolutions vowing fiscal responsibility follow. While lifestyle changes may be necessary to get the checkbook in balance, living within a budget doesn't mean that one has to be deprived of either material needs or luxury.

Bountiful treasure awaits those who have more time than money to unearth the goodies at Lake County's many resale and thrift shops. Anything and everything can be bought on the secondhand market from practical items like children's blue jeans—outgrown long before they're worn out—to frilly party dresses and furs.

Some stores like the Kiddie Korner in Libertyville, and Once Upon a Child with locations in Round Lake, Mundelein and McHenry focus primarily on infants, children and maternity keeping the racks and shelves stocked with appropriate clothing, car seats, monitors, toys and youth furniture. Ester Damore, whose mother owns Kiddie Korner, said, "People often don't realize that we are a resale shop until they see the prices on the tags. We buy by appointment, and are very selective about what we take."

She said that they screen people over the phone first before setting up an appointment. Items are brought in seasonally. "There's usually a little wait for people who want to bring things into us," said Damore. "We don't bulk price things, and they get their money right away, so people are usually happy with us and come back when they have items to pass on."

Damore notes that the shop does mix in a few new items for customer convenience.

Kim Barrett, owner of Once Upon a Child, also said her three shops mix in a few new items, and also buys items directly as opposed to taking consignments. "Because we are so selective, there are certain items that we don't get many of, but we want to have all types of furniture, clothing and equipment available."

Barrett adds that her store tries to be customer friendly. "Our three stores are only about 20 minutes away from each other," she said. "We're happy to call our other stores if we know someone is looking for something in particular."

The Upscale Resale shop in Libertyville has men's, women's and children's clothing, coats and accessories of higher end name brands and designer labels. The condition of accepted merchandise is near perfect. An Armani suit is on the rack that would retail for $850 new for about one-third of that cost.

Natalie Gale, owner of Upscale Resale, said, "All items must be laundered or dry cleaned, and on hangers. We don't take items with stains or tears." Designer names found in the shop include Donna Karan, Jones New York, Doc Martens and Coach. Additionally, there is a whole rack of designer maternity clothes for women looking for an option to the wide ruffle collar at a reasonable price.

Items are rotated every 60 days. There are two mark down periods within the 60 days. One item that made through both markdowns, but that will surely find a new home is a small size Dooney & Bourke purse reduced to $20.

From My Sister's Closet in Antioch has a general theme, but has one long wall that is filled with party dresses appropriate for fancy Christmas and New Year's Eve parties (or homecoming and prom). Once the perfect party dress is picked, this shop will complete your outfit with more than 40 furs and leather coats to keep out the winter's chill.

As with Upscale Resale, this shop also has designer clothes and handbags. Additionally, it has everything imaginable from vintage clothing and hats, sterling jewelry, and some new, hand-made hats that have almost a cult following at the store.

"There are so many cool things that come in to the shop, and they all have a story behind them," said owner Liz Keller. "Even things that we don't necessarily think are special, someone else will come in and go wild over it."

Trader Jon's in Round Lake Beach primarily has electronics such as televisions and VCRs, and musical instruments. The storeowner, Jon Chapman, stresses that his shop is not a pawnshop, but a straight resale shop. Nothing is accepted that is not in good working order.

Nearly all of the area's resale and thrift shops have a charitable aspect to them. The Treasure Hunt Gift and Resale Shop in Mundelein is set up solely to aid those in need. Partners Bev Anderson and Elaine Neville own the shop. The shop sells items, the proceeds of which are used to pay the rent and upkeep. Items are available for families in need of assistance.

Anderson said, "If we have it, we'll donated it to a family in need. We're not allowed to give cash to the families, but we can certainly give them clothing and household items."

The shop has a little of everything from "screw drivers to hairclips, plus clothes furniture, dishes and books." All items are obtained through donation.

"We will pick up local donations," said Anderson. "Right now we have a beautiful organ that we would like to donate to a church or a nursing home. There's not a scratch on it; I just can't seem to find an organization that could use it. We'd really like to see it get a good home."

The Tri-County Thrift Shop in Grayslake is operated by Tri-County Pregnancy and Parenting Services, and benefits the pregnancy center. Manager Sarah Vanderlip said, "The pregnancy center has a lot of baby goods there that they give out. They also give credit vouchers to those who need them, so they can come in here and pick out things that will help them.

All items in this shop are also donated. "Donations are tax deductible, and we give out receipts for the items," said Vanderlip. "We can make arrangements to pick up larger items, but smaller things need to be brought in."

The shop's slogan is that it has "garage sale prices with department store convenience." Vanderlip added, "We work hard to keep our items well sorted. If you're looking for a medium sweater, it will be there on the medium rack."

Most resale and thrift shops have a 60-day rotation period.

Consignment shops generally offer consignors the option of picking up things that haven't sold or donating them to a charity.

Items from Tri-County Thrift Shop are donated to the Salvation Army after 60 days. Clothing from From My Sister's Closet goes to a medical clinic for those in need run by Liz' husband Dick Keller. Upscale Resale passes on items to both Lamb's Farm, and the White Elephant in Chicago to benefit Children's Memorial Hospital.

Many thrift stores such as Helping Hands Resale Shop in Antioch allow less fortunate families to trade children's clothes that have been outgrown for larger items.

They say one man's trash is another man's treasure. Savvy customers have more to gain than the thrill of the hunt when supporting one or more of the area's secondhand stores. Using the services of these shops allows us to help others while helping ourselves.

The story of Sprucey, the blue Christmas tree

Just me. Little Sprucey. The Blue Christmas tree. Not one family chose me. Not one. Woe is me.

What did I do then? Oh, please, don't ever tell. I'm kind of ashamed that I didn't do well. I started to cry, and my tears turned to sap. I sniffled, and snuffled, till'I heard a "SNAP!"

The "SNAP" was the sound of two snow-booted feet, As they stepped on an ice patch that formed in the street, Those two booted feet belonged to a young boy. He sure looked like someone who needed some joy.

"Who's there?" said the young boy, and I answered, "It's me, just a little blue spruce, by the name of Sprucey." Not that I ever thought he could hear what I

But to my amazement, the young boy turned his head.

"No way. I'm not stupid. I don't talk to trees." said the boy. "Now come on out. Show yourself. Please."

He heard me! Why, Santa had made me a talker!

I wondered if he'd also made me a walker! So, I stuck a branch out, and to my surprise, I walked to the boy, and I looked in his eyes! "Nice to meet you," I told him, and held out my limb.

Though I guess I looked funny, you should have seen HIM.

His eyes were so big, he looked just like a deer. He started to back away slowly in fear.

"Oh, please - don't be afraid. I'm a really nice tree.

I was sent here by Santa to help your family. If you wait just a minute, and let me explain, I am sure you will see you have something to gain."

So, I told him my story, and when I was

He told me the sad tale of his family, too.

They'd been homeless for months, living ever since his poor Dad lost his job on the docks.

"Our last name is Davidson. My name is Billy. And...sorry, I'm still feeling...well, kind of silly. I still can't believe that I went for a walk, and met a blue spruce tree...WHO KNOWS HOW TO TALK!"

And as he got closer he shouted, "Hey, you! Just what do you think you are doing with that Why, this lot closed at 9. Can't you read? Answer me!"

Billy tried to explain. "Well, you see, I...oh, gee. I was not trying to steal anything, believe me! It's just that this tree is so special. It talks! And believe it or not, sir, this tree can WALK!"

The officer shook his head. "Sure, kid, nice try. I suppose next you'll tell me that this tree can fly.

Now, run along home, boy, or I'll run you in." Just my luck - we were busted. I just couldn't win.

Then all of a sudden, another man came. He was stout, with a white beard, and carried a

The officer laughed, too, and he said, "Okay. Just give me the ten bucks. I'll be on my way. I'll make sure to give it to Joe - it's his tree.

Although it's so scrawny, it ought to be free!"

In a minute, the officer left us alone. And the bearded man said, "There now. You can go home."

Billy stood there in awe. "Thank you, mister. But, I have to ask you a question. Why did you help me? Why?"

"Ho, ho, ho," said the bearded man. "It's Christmas Eve.

Now, I've got to be going. I have work to do."

Billy said, "One more question. Your name...who ARE you?"

HOROSCOPE

Aries - March 21/April 20

While you know that you should stay out of a disagreement between loved ones early in the week, Aries, you just can't. Try to help those involved to understand each other. It will be difficult, but you are up to the task. Once everything is settled, you will be thanked for your efforts.

Taurus – April 21/May 21 Don't be stubborn when it comes to a family matter this week, Taurus. Your opinion is not the only one that matters. Listen to what others have to say, and try to be objective. They may make some valid points that you haven't thought about. Try to be open to new ideas: Virgo plays an important role in all of this.

Gemini - May 22/June 21

A business associate gets into trouble early in the week and needs your help. Do what you can for this person, because he or she is really in a jam. The higher-ups will be impressed with your efforts. That special someone asks you an important question on Thursday. Be honest - even if what you have to say will be a shock.

Cancer – June 22/July 22 Don't let your conscience get the best of you when you tell a white lie to a close friend. This person will be hurt by the truth, and you just want to spare his or her feelings. You're doing the right thing. A loved one asks for your help with a personal problem. Do what you can for him or her. Scorpio plays a key role.

Leo - July 23/August 23

Don't let your ego get the best of you when you receive an honor this week, Leo. You deserve the recognition, but it certainly doesn't mean that you no longer have to work diligently. Remember that. A close friend offers to take you out this weekend. Say yes, because it's sure to be a great time.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22

Don't be late for an important meeting early in the week, Virgo. If you are, you could miss out on a potentially lucrative opportunity. You don't want to lose this chance. An acquaintance wants to get to know you better. It will be worthwhile to become friends with him or her.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23

A close friend needs someone to talk to early in the week. Be there for this person, because he or she is dealing with a serious situation. Offer your advice, and do what you can. Your efforts will be appreciated. Leo plays an important role.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22

When you find yourself in a difficult situation on Wednesday, don't try to talk your way out of it. Just explain what happened, and take responsibility for your actions. A close friend invites you out late in the week. While you would like to go, don't cancel family plans to do so. Your loved ones are counting on you.

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21

Don't let your temper get the best of you when you have a disagreement with an acquaintance. This person is purposely trying to upset you. So, just let everything that he or she says go in one ear and out the other. That's the best way to handle this situa-tion. A loved one offers you romantic advice. Take it!

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20 There is quite a bit to do this week, Capricorn. So, don't let others distract you from the tasks at hand. You need to stay focused if you want to get anything accomplished. If you work hard during the week, there will be plenty of time to relax once Saturday arrives.

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18

Be realistic when a close friend asks for your assistance. You know that you can't possibly do what this person wants you to do. Explain this to him or her, and try to find another way to help. Your hon-esty will be appreciated. Sagittarius plays a key role.

Pisces – Feb 19/March 20 Don't turn your back on a loved one who needs you - even if this person has hurt you in the past. Just focus on the present, and do what you can to help. Your efforts will strengthen this relationship. That special someone has a surprise for you. Enjoy!

Ev'ry Time I Feel the Spirit' honors Marian Anderson

Famous contralto Marian Anderson (played by Greta Oglesby) becomes a national symbol for civil rights as she sings on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial in this scene from Pegasus Players' production of David Barr's "Ev'ry Time I Feel

the Spirit" playing through Dec.

Michael Brosilow

The late Marian Anderson transcended a humble background to achieve worldwide acclaim for her vocal artistry. It was no easy journey, either.

'Ev'ry Time I Feel the Spirit," David Barr

III's musical tribute to the famed African-American contralto, dramatizes many of the struggles-external and internal-that this talented singer experienced.

Born in 1897 to dirtpoor Philadelphia family, Anderson faced an uphill battle to success. Barr's drama effectively jumps from her earliest training under vocal coach Giuseppe Boghetti to various performances at churches and schools in the South and then on a two-year concert tour of Europe.

Turned away from giving a concert at Constitution Hall by the Daughters of the American Revolution, Anderson made civil rights history on Easter morning, in 1939, singing for a crowd of more than 75,000 on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial, Later, she became the first black artist to sing with the Metropolitan Opera. Conductor Arturo Toscanini once said of the diva, "A voice like yours in heard once in a hundred years." Still, she faced racial prejudice at just about every turn, being forced to ride in the black sections on trains and unable to patronize many hotels or restaurants where she performed.

Two actresses take her part in this play, directed by Ilesa Lisa Duncan: Greta Oglesby is the mature Marian and Berenice Jones, a younger version. Both have decent, expressive voices, though Jones is the stronger of the two.

Totally immersed in her art, Anderson put her personal life on hold, sometimes turning her back on those she loved. in a spirited scene when Paul Robeson (played by Llou Johnson), she is encouraged to take a stand and join a protest against segregation. "I'm an artist-not an activist," she explained. On her own terms, however, she became a symbol for racial equality.

At nearly three hours, the otherwise impressive play seems to run about 20-minutes too long, especially in the closing scenes in Africa where Anderson comes face to face with her cultural heritage.

SPECIAL EVENT

'The Very Hungry Caterpillar' and 'The Very Quiet Cricket' to be presented at Gorton

orton Community Center, 400 East Illinois Road, Lake Forest, is pleased to host the Mermaid Theatre of Nova Scotia and its unique "black light" adaptation of Eric Carle's delightful story books, "The Very Hungry Caterpillar" and "The Very Quiet Cricket," on Wednesday, Dec. 20. The production will take place at 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. in Gorton's John E. Baggett Auditorium. General admission tickets are $10 each.

Eric Carle's recognizable and vibrant colorful collages are combined with the Mermaid Theatre's masterful puppetry and music for a truly memorable event. "The Very Hungry Caterpillar" tells the tale of the hungry caterpillar's progress through an amazing variety of food towards his eventual metamorphosis into a butterfly. The story was first published in 1969, and has since been translated into more than 25 languages and has sold over 12 million copies worldwide.

"The Very Quiet Cricket" follows the quest of a little cricket who yearns to find his own voice. He encounters numerous insects and is unable to respond to their greetings. Finally, he meets another very quiet cricket and his predicament comes to a surprising

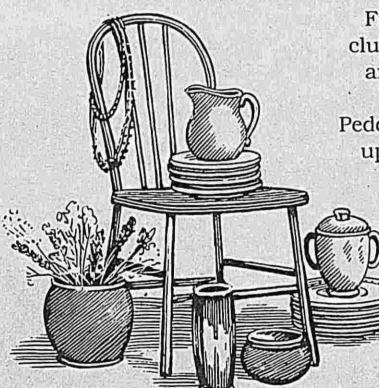

In translating these works to the professional stage, Mermaid Theatre's double-bill mirrors Eric Carle's intuitive understanding of and respect for children, while enhancing the original work with unique sounds, colors and theater surprises for the first-time theater goer. Mermaid Theatre of Nova Scotia has been adapting contemporary and traditional children's literary classics for more than 25 years. They have toured nationally and internationally, performing for close to 2.5 million youngsters on four conti-

Performances are Mondays through Fridays at 10 a.m. and Saturdays at 11 a.m. Tickets are $8 and available by calling the box office at 634-0200. The Marriott Theatre is located at 10 Marriott Dr., Lincolnshire.

Goldilocks on trial?

The Kirk Players will stage the group's Eighth Annual Holiday Children's Show, "The Trial of Goldilocks," on Dec. 8-10 at Mundelein High School auditorium.

The tale has Goldilocks being brought to trial on charges of breaking and entering, and examines the familiar fairy tale from three points of view: The traditional, the Bears' and Goldilocks.

Performances are scheduled for Dec. 8-9 at 7 p.m., and Dec. 9-10 at 2 p.m. Tickets are priced: Adults $7, seniors $5 and children under 12 $3. For tickets call John Lynn at 566-6594.

Bah, humbug!

The Attic Playhouse, 410 Sheridan Rd., High-wood, presents the Dickens classic, "A Christmas Carol," running through December 23. Show times are Fridays and Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 3 p.m. Special Saturday matinees will be on Dec. 16 and 23 at 3 p.m.

The play takes place on Christmas Eve, 1843. Dickens starts to envision what it would be like to meet himself as a young child, and is suddenly inspired. By forcing himself to remember his childhood, a lost love, his disappointments and having to work on Christmas, he dreams up the beginning of "A Christmas Carol."

Tickets are $14 in advance and $15 at the door. Special discounts are given to senior citizens, students with ID, military personnel and groups. Dinner packages for $29 are available at The Two Guys from Italy restaurant, located in the same building. For tickets or further information, call 433-2660.

The King & I

The Barrington Women's Club invites others to see the beloved Rodgers and Hammerstein romance, "The King and I, "on Jan. 10 at the Marriott Theatre in Lincolnshire. Meet at the Langendorf Park at 12:45 p.m. The cost of bus and matinee is $30 and reservations must be made by Dec. 10. Send a check made out to Barrington Women's Club, c/o June Dienes, 326 Old Sutton Rd., Barrington Hills, IL 60010. Participants do not have to be a member of the club to attend. Call 382-4281 for information.

Quilts from Lake County on display at Discovery Museum

n exhibition of antique and contemporary quilts, titled Irish Chains and Spider Webs: Quilts from Lake County, is on display at the Lake County Discovery Museum from December 2000 through

The exhibit showcases quilts from the Museum's collection, area historical societies and the community. Seventeen quilts, spanning 150 years of the quilt maker's art, are displayed along with photographs, two pieces of quilted clothing, and several quilting artifacts. The diverse and beautiful quilts in the exhibit tell fascinating stories about Lake County families and women's history.

The earliest quilt in the show, made in about 1850, came to Waukegan via Pennsylvania, Virginia and New York. Like many Americans who traveled west, its owners carried with them the objects that told their family's story. Modern quilts also tell stories about American history and social change. In a quilt she completed this year, Sadie Watts of Zion used patterns that served as Directional signals on the Underground Railroad.

The most elaborate quilt on the exhibition is a crazy quilt by Elizabeth Preston Benwell of Volo for her youngest daughter, Minnie, in 1891. Pieced together with fancy stitches and bright fabric, the quilt contains tiny pieces of the buckskin bag that Minnie's father used during the 1848 California Gold Rush.

Expert quilt makers, lovers of American history, and anyone who has ever slept beneath an old family quilt, will enjoy hearing the stories of these wonderful artifacts. come explore the history behind this unique art form at the Lake County Discovery Museum.

General admission to the Museum is $5 for adults and $2.50 for youth ages 4-17. Children age three and under are free. Visitor's will also enjoy the Museum's all new, interactive exhibits including the Lake County Mall of History, the Vortex Roller Coaster Theater and Bringing the World Home. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday, and 1-4:30 p.m. on Sunday. The Lake County Discovery Museum is located in Lakewood Forest Preserve on Rte. 176, just west of Fairfield Rd. near

Clicks and bricks enhance holiday shopping in Long Grove

Long Grove, honored by the White House as a "Millennium Village," is a place to step back in time and also discover through cyberspace. Visitors to the historic shopping village will experience an old fashioned Countryside Christmas Celebration running now through December 24, featuring shops housed in decorated Victorian buildings, a landmark covered bridge, lighted brick walkways, weekend carolers, breakfast and lunch with Santa, and horse-drawn carriages, New this holiday season, shoppers can also take a "virtual visit" and plan their trip to Long Grove by clicking on www.longgroveonline.com.

The colorful, user friendly web site posts the names of nearly 90 shops and restaurants, a detailed map of the village, a merchant on line directory, a history of the village, and information on all special events and festivals. Those who log on can receive site updates and sign up for mailing lists.

Holiday visitors, virtual and actual, will be in for a treat with "Da Moose on the Loose in Long Grove!" Artistically decorated, sculptured steel moose have appeared throughout the viliz — Thirty shops will sponsor these whimsical creatures, and will auction them off, with proceeds benefiting a variety of charities, such as Make-A-Wish Foundation of Northern Illinois, Cancer Research, and Illinois Fire Safety Alliance Burn Camp.

Countryside Christmas hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday; and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays. Many shops will be open Thursdays until 8 p.m. through Thursday, December 21. For more information, phone 6340888 or click on www.longroveonline.com.

ancenter North in Libertyville will once again bring to life Tchaikovsky's timeless holiday classic, "The Magic of the Nutcracker." This year marks the twelfth season for the performing arts school's acclaimed ballet production and people seeing it again are in for something new.

The Dancenter North production features a cast of more than 150 singers, dancers, actors and gymnast from the local area as well as a core group of professional performers. This year, two internationallyknown guest artist, Rafael Delgado and Altin Naska, are joining the cast. Delgado is a former member of the Milwaukee Ballet and has performed many principal and soloist roles around the world. Naska is a native of Albania where he performed as a member of the Tirane State Opera and Ballet.

Marguerite Allegretti, a 17-year-old Libertyville High School junior from Libertyville, will be dancing the coveted role as Clara. Allegretti began her ballet training at the age of four and this will be her 11th season in "The Magic of the Nutcracker." "When I was first told that I would be Clara, it really didn't sink in," Allegretti said. Adding to Allgretti'ds excitement at dancing the role of Clara is the fact that this year's Nutcracker Prince is being danced by Rafael Delgado. "It's so fun and different dancing with a professional," commented Allegretti. "It puts a little bit more pressure on me to do things just right so I'm not letting down my part-

The role of the Snow Queen will be danced by Amy Sneider, of Wheeling, a sophomore honor student at Wheeling High School. This is Sneider's second season with "Nutcracker."

The role of the American Beauty Rose will be shared by Karla Beltchenko, of Libertyville and Ashley Russ, of Green Oaks.

Adding to the "magic" of this year's production is a sparkling array of colorful costumes and magnificent

"A large portion of our audience makes "The Magic of the Nutcracker" a part of their holiday traditions," said executive director and choreographer Cheri Lindell. "This year we will be unveiling some surprises that will make the production even more exciting." The production opens Dec. 9 and runs through Dec. 17, with six performances held at Libertyville High School's Butler Auditorium. Ticket prices range from $10 to $20, with discounts for groups with an official status, such as scout troops or church groups. Tickets are on sale now. Call 367-7970 for information.

steak sandwich. Tender slices of beef smothered in onions, green peppers and mushrooms under a blanket of melted mozzarella cheese and served on a really fresh hoagie roll just about put me over the edge. Now add the famous Santo waffle fries with seasoned sour cream dip and I thought I was in heaven!

My partner ordered Jalapeno poppers which appeared to be homemade. They were excellent, nonetheless. Next up was a southwest chicken salad served with a warm tangy dressing. Very tasty! The chicken was sprinkled with Cajun spice and broiled to perfection, atop tossed greens, hard cooked eggs, mushrooms, black olives and red onion. Not only did it taste delicious, the presentation was appealing as well.

The dining room is big and airy; so you don't feel crowded by fellow diners. Decorated with the typical brass, oak and foliage so popular in theme restaurants, it's pleasant without being overdone.

The lounge area is nice with a large, square bar, a few tables, lots of sports memorabilia related to the Chicago Cub great and strategically placed televisions so you won't miss your favorite sporting event. Hey! If you ladies are going to be football, baseball, basketball, hockey, etc. "widows," it's a sure bet your husbands won't die of thirst or hunger here!

The service was prompt and friendly, the servers were knowledgeable about the menu and the food preparation. Best of all, everyone smiles a lot. In all, it was a very pleasant dining experience and I would highly recommend Ron Santo #10 the next time you're in the market for a great meal in a casual setting.

Santo's is open 7 days a week, serving lunch and dinner from 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and until 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The lounge is open until 1:00 a.m. during the week and 2:00 a.m. on the weekend. The restaurant is available for private parties and events. Phone 847-247-9222
